By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Connecticut boy who came down here and made good, Charles L. Eyanson, sat for three hours before the Senate subcommittee investigating lobbyists yesterday and contemplated the price of success.

About him there was a steady and a confusing din, the unqualified praises of his boss on the one hand and the hammering of the committee on the other. And back of him all the while sat the best tariff lobbyist of them all, Joseph R. Grundy, white-haired and white-moustached, well contented with the world, and whose attention the young man's good work had attracted, so much so that he wanted him to come back when he went away. He sat there studying Eyanson and drinking in every word that was exchanged between him and the committee, and probably thinking that with some schooling in how to deal with investigating committees the youngster was the man to take his place when he dies.

The committee at first expressed doubt of Eyanson's story that although a $10,000 a year representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, he was working only for Senator Bingham when the latter placed him on his office pay roll and thus took him into the secret hearings of the Senate finance committee, and then with this accomplished he turned the money back to the senator's clerk who had been temporarily displaced. The committee at first expressed this doubt—then Senator Walsh, of Montana, told Eyanson that he, Walsh, could not comprehend that Eyanson believed it himself.

Employer's Praises Read.

The Montana senator quoted from a letter written under date of July 19 by E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut association, to Eyanson:

"You are doing a great deal more than we ever bargained for in the beginning."

"Isn't the plain meaning of this that Mr. Hubbard knew the rates being set from time to time by the finance committee?" asked Walsh.

Eyanson persisted that Hubbard could not have been referring to rates, as he is such a "very, very busy man who can not bother himself with details."

"Undoubtedly the results you have accomplished are far-reaching and will bear fruit for some time," Walsh continued to quote from the letter.

Eyanson suggested that this must have referred to the "valuable tariff assistance" that he gave to Bingham.

Permanent Job Suggested.

There was a further suggestion in this letter that Eyanson had done so well that Hubbard planned to keep him in Washington.

"I want you to prepare the way for me with Senator Bingham regarding your tenure of office in Washington," the letter said. * * * "At all events in the past the association, when any tariff matters came up, was always dependent on Senator McLean (Senator Bingham's predecessor). Now we are in a position where we can handle it here in the office. * * *. Please help me carry out this program, for there is no question in my mind but that you could find forever a permanent lot of responsibility and useful activities for the rest of your life in Washington.

"Very few will know of the splendid work which you are doing. I doubt if any one else could have been put in such a position and so quickly made good. I am very proud of you."

Eyanson Can't Understand.

Eyanson continued to insist, however, that he could not interpret what Hubbard had in mind, and that when he went on the Government pay roll his employment by the Connecticut Manufacturers Association ceased, although it did not dock him for the time that he was in Bingham's office.

He had been given leaves of absence before, he said, without his salary being stopped.

Walsh finally got him to admit that Hubbard could not have known what good work he was doing even in assisting Bingham unless he knew what rates were being put into the

Two More Huge Rum Rings Bared; Banks, Lawyers Suspected

Dry Men Served for Nine Months as Employes of Smugglers.

Detroit, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The workings of two huge liquor syndicates, centered at Detroit and serving New York and Chicago and intermediate points, were laid bare today by a Federal grand jury which returned indictments against 42 alleged conspirators.

A group of undercover agents who enjoyed the confidence of the rum runners for nearly nine months was instrumental in securing the indictments. They went before the grand jury and revealed how liquor has been smuggled across from Canada in imposing quantities, stored at certain points along the border, and finally sent to New York or Chicago by rail and truck.

Fifteen of the 42 men mentioned in the indictments already have been

Finance Institutions Are Also Thought to Have Backed Scheme.

New York, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—A firm of New Yorw lawyers, who constituted a part of the respectable front behind which the Government charges the big liquor syndicate broken up by Wednesday night's raids operated, was under investigation by the United States attorney's office today.

"There is one firm that I am gunning for," said Robert B. Watts, assistant United States attorney. "I consider them very dangerous men. When I can prove what I know about this firm, we will indict immediately."

Watts declined to name the attorneys under investigation, but said the firm he mentioned was in New York, and had been retained in an advisory capacity by the rum ring.

POLITICS IN PULPIT HIT BY RESOLUTION

Lay Methodist at Virginia Conference Would Curb Preachers' Activities.

ANCIENT POLICY HINTED

Richmond, Va., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Fred C. Abbott, a lay member of Norfolk, offered a resolution here today before the 147th annual Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, seeking to restrict future political activities of Methodist preachers.

The resolution goes to the committee on memorials and will not be reported on before Monday, the Rev. J. B. Winn, chairman of that committee, said.

The resolution declares the traditional policy of the church since its foundation has been to instruct its ministers to hold aloof from worldly affairs and to particularly eschew and abstain from political interest and activities. It recites that there is an increasing tendency for preachers to take an active part in partisan politics, "frequently to the extent of introducing the discussion of political subjects into the church itself." These practices, it says, "tend to engender strife, promote disorder and dissension and often to the disruption of the church."

The Virginia conference is asked to go on record "that it vigorously disapproves and protests against such practices and earnestly admonishes its members hereafter to refrain from taking part in public political controversies and contests." The general conference is asked to declare officially the future policy of the church in regard to the subject and to take "such further remedial action" as it may deem expedient and proper.

Youths Storm Italian Legation in Brussels

Brussels, Belgium, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—A crowd of youths, many of whom were said to be Italian Nationals, gathered outside the Italian Legation tonight, shouting insults to Premier Mussolini and bombarding the building with stones and bricks. They smashed doors and windows.

Police had to fire over the heads of the rioters to disperse them. No one was arrested.

GASTONIA SLAYING CALLED FIENDS' ACT

CASE TO JURY MONDAY

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—There will be no verdict in the trial of seven defendants for the murder of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police, before Monday, Judge M. V. Barnhill late this afternoon having adjourned court until that day, stating that he wanted ample time to prepare his charge to the jury for delivery Monday morning.

Judge Barnhill's decision came at the close of arguments, which have occupied two days. Solicitor John G. Carpenter made the closing argument, picturing the seven defendants as "deadly assassins" and "fiends incarnate." The solicitor declared "the very fiends of Satan himself must have chortled in glee at the deadly assassins that night" as he spoke of the death of Aderholt on the night of June 7 at the Loray strikers headquarters, which the solicitor classed as a place of "evil, immorality, sin and iniquity."

Fred Erwin Beal, alleged ringleader of the defendants, was held up by the solicitor as a "traitor worse than Benedict Arnold" and the entire ring as a "traitorous crowd coming from hell, not with pitchforks, but with guns."

Walking over to the widow of the chief, Carpenter offered the sympathy of the State and defense counsel protested, the court sustaining the objection. The solicitor again brought out the fact that the chief was shot in the back, a fact emphasized by the State in presenting its evidence to the jury.

He said that some women at the union grounds had cried to the guards to do their duty, and he now was calling upon the jury to do its duty in the name of justice.

Closing argument for the defense was made by Frank Flowers, in which he made a ringing appeal for the acquittal of the seven defendants on grounds that the State had failed in its purpose to show that a conspiracy had been formed.

Hoover Denounces Tablet On New Louvain Library

Disclaims Approval of Architect's Insistence to Place Protested Inscription on Building for Which President Raised Funds.

President Hoover, speaking for himself and those associated with him in the American gift of a library to the University of Louvain, emphatically disclaimed yesterday "any approval of the action of Mr. Whitney Warren in insisting upon an offensive inscription upon the building."

The President's declaration was in response to an inquiry by a newspaper correspondent concerning the controversy which has raged in the little Belgian city over whether the library building should bear the Latin inscription:

"Destroyed by German fury, restored by American generosity," as insisted upon by Mr. Warren, architect of the structure.

"I and those associated with me in the American gift of a library to the University of Louvain," the President said, "wish to emphatically disclaim any approval of the action of Mr. Whitney Warren in insisting upon an offensive inscription upon the building.

"The library cost about 32,000,000 francs, wholly provided from the United States. Of this sum over 70 per cent was secured by a committee under my chairmanship and the other part by a committee under the chairmanship of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. Mr. Whitney Warren was the architect and did produce a most notable building of great credit to himself and the Nation.

"The authorities of the university three years ago, with my approval, refused to allow the inscription insisted upon by Mr. Warren, and if my recollection serves me rightly, Dr. Butler also protested against it."

The controversy over placing the inscription reached the point of a riot in Louvain, with the police refusing to permit the part of the building bearing it to be erected. Mr Warren then took the case before the authorities, who recently decided in his favor.

The President interested himself in the restoration of the library because of his work of relief in Belgium, directed personally during the early days of the war and indirectly after the United States entered the conflict and he had been drafted by President Wilson as food administrator.

EXPERT GROUP TO HELP SOLVE CRIMES ASKED

Holaday Seeks to Guard Against Repetition of McPherson Case.

UNIT WOULD BE MADE OF SEVEN SCIENTISTS

SACKETT COMMITTEE MARKS TIME FOR DAY

Four Letters Seeking Data on District Affairs Are Sent Out.

To guard against another internecine row such as grew out of the McPherson murder, Representative Holaday (Republican), of Illinois, yesterday tentatively proposed a scientific crime-detection unit made up of seven experts.

The proposed unit, which would cooperate with the police homicide squad, would consist of the following experts:

A microscopist (an expert in the use of the microscope), a calibrator (gun expert), a photographer, a handwriting expert, a finger print expert, a chemist, and a physician.

"If we had had such a unit as this early last month," Holaday said, "I don't believe the fiasco that resulted from the McPherson investigation would have been possible."

Senators Await Replies.

The Sackett subcommittee, which is investigating affairs in the Police Department and other departments here, marked time yesterday the while it awaited replies from four letters which its clerk, O. H. Brinkman, sent out in the morning.

In discussing his proposed scientific unit yesterday, Representative Holaday said that he and Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, began thinking about such a unit several months ago while considering police problems. Simmons is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that has charge of District appropriations, and Holaday is ranking member of that subcommittee, hence both have considerable influence here.

"In proposing this thing," Holaday said, "I am not trying to reflect on the men who are now running down local crimes; on the contrary, I am trying to help them."

Job Is to Catch Criminal.

"We can't expect a man who has worked his way up from the ranks to the Detective Bureau to be a microscopist, a calibrator, a handwriting expert and a chemist all in one. His job is to catch the criminal; he is essentially a man hunter.

"As a matter of fact, I believe the detective would be glad to have these experts behind him. It would give him confidence. He would know that

Two Aviation Officers Die as Plane Crashes

Scott Field, Ill., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Lieut. Charles F. Scott, chief instructor of reserve officers at Scott Field, and Lieut. J. K. They were making a training flight in a biplane and Lieut. Short was at the controls when the plane went up. He had been taking a number of reserve officers aloft on training flights this afternoon.

SENATORS WILL BE NAMED ON DELEGATION TO LONDON; PARIS ACCEPTS ROME OFFER

French Accept Italian Invitation for Early Navy Discussion.

PRINCIPLE OF PARITY TO BE TURNING POINT

Absolute Equality Is Out of Question, France Will Insist.

SOME MEDITERRANEAN CONCESSIONS LIKELY

Quai May Agree That Italy Shoud Have Greater Strength There.

Paris, Oct. 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Premier Aristide Briand, acting as foreign minister, today accepted the Italian invitation to discussion between Rome and Paris on limitation of naval armaments as a preliminary to the five-power parley to be held at London in January. This discussion, which has already been going on for some months between the naval experts of the two countries, will now take diplomatic form.

The Italian naval experts have tried in vain to persuade the naval experts of France to adopt a program based on the principle of Franco-Italian parity. The new discussion, the New York World News Service is informed, is expected to turn on the same question.

France does not want to discuss parity which it considers out of the question on account of the different geographical positions of Italy and France and because of the greater extent of the French Colonial Empire, but the Italians are expected to insist.

France and Italy have common interests to defend at London: First, submarines, and second, substantial Mediterranean fleets. On the question of submarines their interests are identical so agreement between them is a foregone conclusion, but Mediterranean fleets involve the complicated question of the balance of forces.

The French position in the discussion with Italy will be that France will go to London with a program of what she considers her minimum requirements in all classes of vessels in view of the channel, Atlantic and Mediterranean shores, her empire in North Africa and her colonies and dependencies in various parts of the world. Italy would do well to state her minimum requirements, too, the French hold.

Italy, having a coastline exclusively in the Mediterranean and no possessions comparable with those of the French, discussion of absolute parity will be stated to be out of the question. The point for contact and agreement between the two Latin powers lies, however, in the Mediterranean, as the French may agree to the reasonableness of Italy having a larger fleet in that sea itself, the difference in France's favor lying in the ships she needs for protection of her Atlantic coast and in the channel.

A fixed understanding between France and Italy before the London conference convenes is considered likely in France only if Italy abandons her pretention to complete parity with this country.

Two or More Expected to Be Appointed as Naval Conferees.

PERSONNEL OF GROUP NOT YET DETERMINED

Five or Six, Headed by Stimson, to Compose Completed Roll.

JAPAN BACKS HOOVER ON REDUCTION POLICY

(Associated Press.)

The American delegation to the London naval limitation conference will consist of five or six members under the chairmanship of Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State.

President Hoover has decided to appoint some senators to the commission, but the personnel may not be completed for a week or more.

While no naval officers will be appointed to the commission proper, they will assist in an advisory capacity, headed by Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, commander in chief of the United States fleet, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired.

Number of Senators Problematical.

Whether Hoover will name two or four senators on the commission proper is for future determination. Two senators, the late Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, and the late Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, served with the other three delegates to the Washington arms conference in 1921.

With definite information that senators will be named as delegates, speculation last night as to who they will be covered a wide range.

The name of Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, came immediately into the conjecture, but some of his close friends expressed doubt that he would accept even if tendered a place.

Democratic Leader Suggested.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, was looked upon as the logical selection from the minority party. In addition to being the floor leader, he is a ranking member of both the foreign relations and the naval committees.

Should the President decide to name four senators, two from each of the major parties, it is expected that he might turn to Senator Swanson, of Virginia, who is ranking Democratic member on both the foreign relations and the naval committees. He also is a big Navy advocate.

The names of Republican senators which were heard most frequently in the unofficial discussions were those of Senator Hale, of Maine, chairman of the naval committee, and also a big Navy advocate, and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, a member of the foreign relations committee, and who also has had diplomatic service.

Senator Borah never has crossed the Atlantic and frequently has expressed a determination not to do so. However, he for years has been among the foremost advocates of general disarmament on land as well as sea.

Borah Prompted Parley Held Here.

His resolution for a general disarmament conference was generally credited with having influenced President Harding in calling the 1921 parley in Washington.

As the President was giving thought to the selection of the American delegation, he found encouragement for his policy of general naval reduction from the text of the Japanese note accepting the invitation to the London conference.

NINE-STORY PLUNGE IS FATAL TO WOMAN

Body Found Immediately After She Is Left in Hotel Room.

INVESTIGATION IS BEGUN

A woman identified as Mrs. St. George Souissat, about 50 years old, of Houston, Tex., a guest at the Carlton Hotel, fell or jumped to her death at 10:30 o'clock last night from an inside tenth-floor room to the second-floor inner court level at the Raleigh Hotel, Pennsylvania avenue and Twelfth street northwest.

The woman, receiving a compound fracture of the skull, a broken neck and other injuries in the fall, was pronounced dead by Dr. I. Rutkoski, of the Emergency Hospital staff, upon his arrival at the hotel a few minutes after the body had been discovered.

Lieut. Joseph Morgan, newly appointed chief of the homicide squad, accompanied by two policemen, began an investigation immediately. A report of his findings had not been made public at an early hour this morning.

According to employes of the Raleigh Hotel, the woman walked alone to the front desk shortly before 10:30 o'clock and declared that she was seeking a room. Charles Green, 20 years old, a bellboy, acting upon orders from the clerk in charge, escorted the woman to a room on the seventh floor.

Green declared she glanced about the room, raised a window and lean-

SHORT-CIRCUIT FIRE IGNITES STREET CAR

GROUNDED PLOW CAUSE

The lives of about 30 passengers aboard a Chevy Chase Lake street car were momentarily endangered about 10:15 o'clock last night on Eighteenth street at Kalorama road northwest, when flames suddenly shot up from the power rail into the car from a grounded plow. The blaze was preceded a few seconds by a loud report as the short circuit burst into a fire.

Motorman G. Hefner, of Kensington, Md., brought the car to a quick stop and warned the passengers to get out of the car as he and Conductor Robert G. Riggs, of Chevy Chase, flung both doors open. The occupants, including both men and women, filed out in orderly fashion, though for a moment there was danger of hysteria on the part of several women.

So far as police could learn no one was injured. The flames did not rise high enough in the car to do much damage outside the operating machinery, but firemen had to play a hose upon the floorboard to extinguish smouldering wood.

Traffic was tied up on Eighteenth street for 30 minutes by the fire, all street cars and many automobiles being halted while firemen and power company electricians attempted to

Features in The Post Tomorrow

Meet Senator Dumm and Representative Dummer in The Post's tabloid magazine tomorrow. These characters created by the celebrated humorist, H. I. Phillips, whose column appears daily on the editorial page, tomorrow begin a series of side-splitting debates on national and international subjects.

David Rankin Barbee has sketched an interesting history of tariff legislation which is particularly timely in view of current consideration of the Smoot-Hawley bill. It is written so that the man in the street can understand it. Another timely subject—lobbying—is the topic of a special article.

Two years ago Roy Gray was adjudged as "the average man." He received national publicity and many flattering offers to indorse various products and to go on the stage. What has happened to "the average man" during these two years? A story in The Post tomorrow answers the question.

"Color This Bird," a new feature for young and old alike will make its bow tomorrow. There will be presented a series of drawings of various widely known birds with descriptions that will aid in coloring them. Cash prizes will be given for the best correct colorings.

Another new feature, "Things Easy to Make," will appeal to boys. It will give detailed instructions for the making of various useful articles.

Operation to Regain Youth Shown at Surgeon's Clinic

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Man's eternal quest for youth held the attention of a group of surgeons attending the American College of Surgeons Clinic today after Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, Chicago, demonstrated a new form of rejuvenation operation. Although the college has not given official sanction to this type of surgery, the operation is causing comment.

Phlebophlebostomy—meaning "vein to vein" in the surgeon's vernacular—forms the basis of Dr. Lespinasse's new technique. The surgeon joins certain veins in the lower abdomen, causing the blood to follow a different course and thus, it is claimed revitalizing the glands. The operation does not involve the transplanting of glands or the use of glandular extracts.

Dr. Lespinasse, in 1922, performed a rejuvenation upon Harold F. McCormick, prominent Chicagoan. His patient today was said to have been wealthy and widely known, but his identity was guarded carefully. The surgeon said that his method has passed the experimental stage and has been used on many patients.

Awarding of honorary fellowships in the American College of Surgeons occupied tonight's session, the honors going to the following:

Viscount Florestan Aguilar, of Madrid, physician in ordinary to his majesty, King Alphonso of Spain and professor of oral surgery at the University of Madrid. Dr. Aguilar holds an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. James Heyman, of Stockholm, chairman of the gynecological department of the Radiumhemmet of Stockholm, and Dr. William Alexander Osborne, of Melbourne, Australia, dean of the faculty of medicine and chairman of the cancer research committee of the University of Melbourne.

Philadelphia was chosen as the scene of the 1930 congress, which probably will be held during October.

MacDonald Tells Plans.

Ottawa, Ontario, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—A comparative day of rest was enjoyed by Ramsay MacDonald today. He was called upon to make three addresses in as many semipublic appearances but in comparsion with the vigorous program he followed in the United States and thus far in his way in Canada, his schedule was light.

After declaring in an address last night that he intends soon to institute with France, Italy and Japan the same informal negotiations which he started with President Hoover looking to naval disarmament, he went through today without making any major pronouncement on his peace mission to America, although he was given an opportunity to discuss the question again tonight at a dinner in his honor at Government House.

One of his first functions of the day was to be sworn in as a member of the privy council of Canada, a group of ministers and former ministers of the government who are advisers to the governor general.

Art Gallery Is Visited.

After this ceremony the prime minister of Great Britain, his daughter, Ishbel, and a distinguished escort visited the National Gallery where Lord Willingdon, governor general, formally opened a loan exhibition of Dutch and English pictures.

Luncheon at the Country Club as the guest of R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservative party, and a tea as the guest of William Phillips, United States Minister, were part of MacDonald's program.

Miss Ishbel was invited to lunch with Mrs. C. H. Thornburn at the Chelsea Club.

Second Betrothal Rumor Denied.

The second matrimonial rumor which has cropped up since the MacDonalds arrived in Canada was spiked today. Miss Gretta Gordon, daughter of the Rev. V. W. Gordon, Canadian novelist, who writes as Ralph Connor, denied she was engaged to marry Malcolm MacDonald, son of the prime minister.

"Perfectly ridiculous," said Miss Gordon. "There is no truth in it."

day in the Italian press, which also emphasizes that agreements between the two powers whose shores are washed by the Mediteranean is one of the most important prerequisities to success of the forthcoming five-power parley at London.

Whereas Franco-Italian parity with regard to ships of the line was settled by the Washington conference of 1921, no agreement has ever been reached between the two countries as to what should be their relative strengths in other classes of ships.

Today's newspapers cite Premier Benito Musolini's declaration of Italian policy before the Senate here last June as still presenting the Italian attitude. At that time Il Duce declared:

Proof of Italy's Good Faith.

"Italy is ready to accept as the limitations of her own armaments those figures, no matter how low, which will not be exceeded by any other continental power. No declaration could give better proof of Italy's good faith."

The Italian press appears considerably more hopeful than the French as to the prospects of success at London. The newspapers here deplore that the French press has been carrying on a campaign against Franco-Italian naval parity ever since the invitations to the London conference were issued.

Eastern High Teacher Sued for Auto Crash

Frank Suter, a teacher at Eastern High School, was named defendant in two suits filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court in which damages in the sum of $15,000 are sought as the result of an automobile accident. Norman W. Birkett, of E street southeast, near Twelfth street, and Elsie A. Tarman, of G street southeast, near Thirteenth street, are the plaintiffs, the former seeking $10,000 damages and the latter $5,000.

The two plaintiffs tell the court that they were occupants of an automobile which was in collision with another machine operated by Charles F. Suter, son of the defendant, who is alleged to have been acting as his father's agent. Allegation is made that young Suter was driving negligently and carelessly. Attorney W. DR. BUTLER PRAISES EFFORTS FOR PEACE

Institute of International Law Hears Hoover and Premier Lauded.

JURISTS TO COME HERE

New York, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, told the Institute of International Law tonight that President Hoover and Premier MacDonald, in their recent conferences, did more toward furthering an understanding between their nations than could have been accomplished by 40 years of diplomatic procedure.

Their conference, he said, indicated the final breaking down of the old order of war and conflict and the clearing of the last stumbling block from the path of a "world that turns from war to peace."

"Ramsay MacDonald and Hoover at Washington have done the business for which the world was waiting with bated breath," he said. "Public opinion will do the rest. That government or governmental agency which attempts to stand in the way of those official acts that are needed to transform these new convictions and these new understandings into law will be broken on the wheel.

"These are not arrangements which affect alone two nations or any small group of nations. They are arrangements which strike the note of leadership throughout the world and which invite, and, indeed, compel, universal assent and cooperation."

Dr. Walter Simons, chief justice of Germany; Sir Cecil Hurst, legal adviser to the British foreign office; Charles de Visscher, of Belgium, secretary general of the institute, and Albert de Lapradelle, of the University of Paris, were other speakers at the banquet, which was given by the trustees of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The affair marked termination of the first conference held in the United States by the Institute of International Law, an organization composed of many of the world's most famous jurists. The institute closed its thirty-sixth session at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., this morning, and the delegates came on to New York for three days of sightseeing.

They will leave here next Tuesday to visit Princeton, N. J.; Philadelphia and Washington. President Hoover will give a tea for the jurists at the White House on the afternoon of October 25.

SCIENTIFIC CRIME GROUP SUGGESTED

the microscopist was there to pick up clews which his own eyes might pardonably miss; he would know that the gun expert was there to advise him as to what kind of weapon was used, and in addition he would have the help of the other experts—the chemist, the physician, the handwriting expert, the fingerprint expert and the photographer."

Washington has long had a fingerprint bureau, and with a recognized expert, Fred Sandberg, at the head of it. Holaday would use this bureau as the foundation for his proposed scientific unit.

All Would Be Experts.

"Each of these experts would have to be a real expert," Holaday said. "They would have to be men who really knew their business, and who would go into court and win the confidence of a jury.

"I believe it also would be a good thing to have them deliver lectures to the uniformed patrolmen, pointing out the great importance of keeping the scene of a crime undisturbed until they can arrive and do their work.

"There is no doubt but that many an investigation has been spoiled by somebody upsetting a place before the investigators arrived on the scene."

Plan Still Tentative.

Holaday made it clear that his present plan for the scientific unit is still in a tentative form. There are many problems involved, he said, which he wants to ponder before taking any definite action. For example, he said, he has not decided yet whether the experts should be on a full-time or a part-time basis; whether they should be under the civil service or independent of it; or whether, in fact, Washington wants to stand the expense of such a unit.

The most important of the four letters sent out by the Sackett subcommittee yesterday was the one that went to Attorney General Mitchell, asking that Department of Justice agents be assigned to investigate charges of inefficiency and corruption in the local government.

Of the other three, one asks Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, why Policeman Robert J. Allen was suspended while he was investigating the McPherson case; another calls on United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to explain the delay in bringing in an indictment after the tong murder of Lee King, and the third requests Police Court Judge Gus A. Schuldt to submit information as to the persons who have been given permits to carry guns and those who have been refused such permits.

Oral Answers Likely Also.

When replies are received from these officials—and they are expected early next week—the Sackett subcommittee will hold a meeting to decide on its next step.

It is possible, of course, that the written replies will be found satisfactory by the senators, but the probability is that they will simply use these as the basis for a formal hearing, to which will be summoned the three officials involved—Maj. Pratt, Mr. Rover and Judge Schuldt.

If Pratt is called to tell why Allen was suspended, it seems that the subcommittee, in its determination to be fair, would also have to call Allen and hear his side. Then, if the rule of fairness is to be extended still further, it would seem that Inspector William Shelby and Lieut. Ed Kelly would have to be called.

They Ask to Appear.

Allen has blamed Kelly for bungling the McPherson investigation, and it was as a result of his reopening of the case that the grand jury excoriated Kelly and Shelby and had them removed from their respective positions as head of the Detective Bureau and chief of the homicide squad.

Shelby and Kelly have said that they would welcome a chance to appear before the Sackett subcommittee, and have even written a letter to the subcommittee asking that they be called.

If Allen, Shelby and Kelly should be called, however, a row over the McPherson case undoubtedly would develop, which is one thing the senators want to avoid at this time. Most of them want to delay any discussion of the McPherson case until it has been tried in court.

Thus, the subcommittee may decide to postpone this phase of the investigation for several months, in the meantime going ahead with the Chinatown phase.

DOHENY, WITNESS FOR FALL, WEEPS

REPLIES BECOME SHARP

(Associated Press.)

Calling its chief witness in the attempt to obtain acquittal of Albert B. Fall on charges of bribery, the defense yesterday elicited from Edward L. Doheny testimony that the $100,000 he advanced Fall in 1921 was not a bribe for the Elk Hills oil lease, but a loan to an old friend with whom he had faced hardships in pioneer times.

The wealthy 73-year-old oil promoter appeared after his wife had testified briefly. Smiling when he mounted the witness stand, he wept as he described what he said was pointed out to him as a menace to the Pacific Coast from the Japanese navy if this Government was not in position to prevent the foreign fleet from approaching the coast.

Answers Become Sharp.

After that he gave sharp answers to the Government prosecutor, Owen J. Roberts, on cross-examination. Roberts developed from Doheny that his testimony in some instances did not agree with that given by him before a Senate oil investigating committee six years ago.

Doheny told the story of sending the money to Fall by his son on November 30, 1921, saying it was a loan to an old friend in financial difficulties and had nothing to do with his company securing a lease to the Elk Hills Naval Reserve which the Government alleges is the reason he gave Fall the money. He had torn the signature off the note that Fall gave him, he said, to prevent its being presented for payment and embarrassing Fall in case of his own death.

Says Admiral Sought Bid.

The oil man insisted he did not want to bid on the contract to construct oil storage facilities for the Navy at Pearl Harbor, which resulted in the Elk Hill lease being awarded his company, and had told Admiral J. K. Robison that he was not interested.

Robison, he continued, had begged him to bid and, to secure his consent, had outlined a danger from a foreign power in the Pacific, which he said the officer asserted could destroy fortifications on the Pacific Coast unless this Government was in position to prevent its fleet from getting within striking distance. To do this, Doheny testified, the officer said the Navy must have an oil supply base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and other bases along the coast.

"That government was Japan and fortunately the earthquake in Japan destroyed the very thing that was the menace, thousands of barrels of oil," the witness said.

On cross-examination Roberts brought out that the talk with Robison was in December, 1921. Officials of Doheny's company have testified that they did not hear of the Pearl Harbor contract until January, 1922.

Danville, Va., Oct. 18.—Sheriff Charles Murphy, of Pittsylvania, was today without clew to the identity of four men who early yesterday held up and robbed Lester David, Franklin County farmer, of $385 and his new automobile.

According to David, who was near Straightstone in Pittsylvania County, he stopped his car when four men stepped into the road. He thought they were prohibition officers. He found, however, that he was covered by three revolvers. The stolen car was abandoned by the bandits 20 miles away.

PROSECUTOR LINKED WITH RUM "RACKET"

OFFICIAL TO BE CALLED

(Associated Press.)

Decision to call a Federal district attorney of South Carolina for questioning was made by the Senate patronage committee yesterday, after it had listened to testimony by a former prohibition agent that the prosecutor had failed to press prohibition cases.

The former agent, A. B. Seabrook, of North Charleston, S. C., told the committee that J. D. E. Meyer, the district attorney, had failed to prosecute about 50 cases, and that one of them, a charge against G. D. McKnight, of Berkley County, S. C., was "one of the most important" in the history of the State.

McKnight, whom Seabrook described as a bootlegger, was arrested, the former agent said, but the charge was not pressed, and afterward Seabrook himself was arrested, tried and acquitted on a charge of accepting a bribe from McKnight.

Meanwhile, the former agent added, McKnight was made a prohibition agent, although it had been testified in court he was a bootlegger.

Senator Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, a member of the committee, observed it was inconceivable that a district attorney could hold office for seven years "if this is true," adding that the matter ought to be called to the attention of the Department of Justice. He said later, however, he would wait until he had heard Meyer's explanation.

As the hearing opened Chairman Brookhart put into the record a letter from Representative Robsion (Republican), of Kentucky, in which the latter denied he had solicited funds from Kentucky postmasters for his primary campaign of 1924, as charged by R. B. Waddle, a former postmaster at Somerset, Ky.

"No Federal officeholder in my district or other person," Robsion said, "has ever been called upon by me to contribute to any campaign."

Seabrook then was called, and he launched into a detailed account of the case against McKnight, asserting he had made a "complete case" against him.

"Where is McKnight now?" McKellar asked.

"Back at bootlegging," the witness answered.

"McKellar asked what evidence McKnight had produced at Seabrook's bribery trial. The former agent said he had "tried to show I had received marked money" and that he had "paid me $36,000 a year for protection."

"I only had $600 when I was arrested," he added, smiling. This was saved," he said, from his salary and a farm he owned.

McKnight, the witness went on, was appointed an undercover man several months after Seabrook was arrested.

"Did he give up the bootlegging business?" McKellar inquired.

"No," Seabrook said. "I had information he was receiving a carload of sugar every week at his place in Hell Hole."

"Did he have a license?" asked McKellar.

"I don't know," Seabrook responded. "I notified Gen. Andrews."

Andrews at that time was in charge of prohibition enforcement in the Treasury Department.

SENATE SPEEDS UP TARIFF SUDDENLY

All Administrative Proposals Voted On, Except Norris' Debenture Rider.

EARLIER ASSEMBLY SET

(Associated Press.)

All sides in the burning controversy over the tariff joined yesterday in what appeared to be an earnest effort to speed the Hawley-Smoot revision measure to the White House before the regular session opens in December.

As a result, the Senate disposed of virtually all remaining amendments to the administrative provisions, except the export debenture rider proposed by Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska. An agreement was reached to vote on this disputed subject not later than 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Coupled with the agreement to vote so early, was an understanding to meet at 10 o'clock in the morning, instead of 11 as has been customary for the last several weeks. The usual meeting hour is noon. Also, senators will be limited under the agreement to speak not more than 20 minutes each on the debenture amendment.

The speeding-up program went through as if it had been prearranged. Earlier in the day more than a dozen Republican regulars met and decided to ask the earlier meeting hour in event any request for night sessions to begin last night was turned down. Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, moved the 10 o'clock convening hour without endeavoring to obtain night sessions and there was no objection.

Meanwhile, Senator Borah, of Idaho, Republican independent leader, asserted Congress would "get tariff revision in the interest of agriculture at this special session, or we will demand it and get it at the regular session."

The statement was regarded as an answer to the current impression that President Hoover would not recommend tariff revision at the regular session in event the special session failed to agree on the pending bill.

Two important amendments were disposed of yesterday. One was adopted to limit the time in which Canadian wheat may be held in domestic warehouses before withdrawal to ten months, instead of three years as provided in existing law.

The amendment was sponsored by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, and is aimed to pervent a glutting of American storage facilities at a time when domestic wheat requires additional elevator space.

By a vote of 60 to 14 the Senate went on record against a proposal by Senator Waterman (Republican), Colorado, to abrogate the Cuban-American reciprocity treaty under which each country grants the other preferential tariffs on hundreds of commodities.

Thirty-four Republicans joined 26 Democrats in opposing the amendment, while 12 Republicans and 2 Democrats voted for it. The twelve were Senators Brookhart, Frazier, Hatfield, Johnson, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Shortridge, Thomas, of Idaho; Warren and Waterman. Kendrick and Ransdell were the Democrats in favor of the resolution.

Several opponents of the proposal, including Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, said they argeed with its intent, but thought the matter should be approached in regular diplomatic channels and not as a part of a tariff bill.

This was the same stand taken by many opponents of the King amendment looking to early independence of the Philippines.

Early Action Problematic.

Whether the speeding up program agreed upon yesterday will accomplish its purpose—final congressional action before the special session expires—is something only the future can determine.

President Hoover has taken a firm stand for retention of the flexible provisions, giving the Executive power to change customs duties after investigation by the tariff commission. The House is expected to make a vigorous effort to reinsert this provision which the Senate eliminated.

The President also is on record in no uncertain terms against the debenture form of farm relief and so is the House. Indications are that the Norris proposal will be tacked on the tariff bill today by a margin at least as big as three votes, which incorporated it in the farm bill on two occasions in the Senate.

Houses May Be Deadlocked.

Administration leaders say these two propositions are enough to deadlock the two houses indefinitely and unless some concessions are made the tariff bill will not see the White House until far into the regular session.

Proponents of the debenture plan were confident last night it would pass today.

"The debenture plan, through the application of the tariff," said Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, "is a sure way of giving some relief to agriculture, and this tariff bill with its many inequalities and injustices against agriculture is most appropriate for such an amendment. It is my opinion that it will be adopted by a safe vote."

Housekeepers File Protests on Tariff

A resolution protesting against the proposed tariff bill now in Congress was adopted yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Housekeepers Alliance at the Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. The raise in duty on sugar was said to be the chief point of opposition.

Miss Mary Turner, of the Potomac Electric Power Co., spoke on "The Progress of the Electrical Industry" and the meeting was devoted to the Edison anniversary. Mrs. Ruth Snodgrass presided.

The housekeepers voted to omit the December meeting on account of the Christmas holidays. A tea will be given the women on November 12 by Mrs. Albert Baggs, 2324 Ashmead place northwest.

Asks $50,000 Damages In Trolly-Auto Crash

The Washington Railway & Electric Co. was named defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court. Robert A. Winkler, of Alaska avenue northwest, near Georgia avenue, is the plaintiff in the action, seeking the damages for alleged personal injuries and the loss of his automobile.

Winkler tells the court through Attorneys Samuel Robinson and Kaplan & Tanenbaum, that he was a passenger in his own automobile on August 13 last, when in crossing the Georgia avenue street car tracks at Fern street the vehicle was struck by a trolley car. He contends that the street car was being operated at an unlawful speed and that the defendant's agents were negligent and did not exercise due care.

Rug Expert Is Freed By Verdict of Jury

A jury in Criminal Division No. 3 of the District Supreme Court yesterday acquitted Nejib Hekemian, Connecticut avenue rug expert, of a charge of larceny after trust.

Hekemian, the Government contended, sold a landscape painting intrusted to him by Mrs. Helen Clark and neglected to account to her for the money. The defense brought out that the picture was sold and the money was credited to the account of Franklin Clark, an art dealer, who was his wife's agent in the transaction. Attorney James A. Toomey represented Hekemian, while Assistant United States Attorney James F. Hughes appeared for the Government.

ALIBIS ARE CLAIMED IN STRIKE FLOGGING

COURT DENIES MOTIONS

Concord, N. C., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Thirty-seven witnesses were called by the defense this afternoon as it began its task of building up alibis for the four men on trial in Superior Court here on charges growing out of the flogging of Ben Wells, British communist textile organizer.

Defense witnesses began to take the stand as soon as the prosecution rested at 2:05 p. m., and from that time until Judge A. M. Stack recessed court late this afternoon there was the steady stream of witnesses who testified that the defendants were not connected with the Gastonia anti-communist mob.

Cases on behalf of three of the defendants are completed. O. G. Morehead, Loray Mill superintendent and sixteen others told of his actions on the night when Wells, C. D. Saylors and C. M. Lell were seized at a Gastonia rooming house and brought to this county. Carl Holloway and seven others testified as to his actions, while Dewey Carver was aided by eight others in building up his alibi.

State Witnesses Number Nine.

Only one witness had appeared for the fourth defendant, Horace Lane, Myers Mill overseer, when court recessed. Holloway and Carver are Loray Mill employes.

The prosecution used only nine witneses in presenting its case, but the hearing of these witnesses was prolonged by the unsuccessful efforts of defense attorney to impeach testimony of several by introduction of alleged communistic affiliations.

The defense opened this afternoon with a Concord police officer, Walter Bond, who testified Saylors told him after returning here that he recognized Solicitor John G. Carpenter, of Gastonia, and former Congressman A. L. Bulwinkle in the crowd around the lodge house.

O. G. Morehead testified next, telling how he saw the "parade" of automobiles and followed and made an effort to get the crowd at the house occupied by Mrs. Perry Lodge to disperse. He told them, he said, that Gastonia had had enough "shame and reproach" and to return to their homes.

Defense Motions Are Denied.

After his unsuccessful effort, he said, he telephoned the police and then returned to the mill, where he was conducting a test run. He remained there until after midnight, going home and going to bed.

O. T. Sams, Gastonia town constable, was the first witness for Lane. He testified he had sworn Lane in as a deputy because he expected trouble in South Loray that night and had been with him from 7 o'clock until after 10:30 p. m.

Judge Stack denied the defense motions for nonsuit of the case with the exception of the assault charge against Lane. This was granted.

A. L. Bulwinkle, chief counsel for the defense, said late this afternoon he thought it unlikely that the defense would have more than an hour of additional evidence.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

WHEN Postmaster General Brown discounts the threat of Col Mann and his Southern Hoovercrats, he is overlooking that rampant element of the last campaign—the women.

By all the rules of politics, as the game has been played heretofore, there would seem to be no occasion for Mr. Brown to worry, regardless of what Col. Mann and his followers threaten to do. They may call one mass meeting or convention after another, but according to the rules that have applied heretofore, they could do nothing without the power of patronage.

Mr. Brown has this power and he has reason to assume that those whom he sets up in the South as the subordinate patronage powers will be the Republican influences long after Col. Mann's followers have ceased to complain.

• • • •

BUT the Postmaster General is reckoning without the women.

It is quite true that it is the patronage power that has made the political wheels turn heretofore. And in so far as the protestations of the Mann followers go—that they are above patronage, that they are interested only in the setting up of an idealistic Republican organization in the South—their words may be taken with a grain of salt.

The Postmaster General probably does, and remains serene in the belief that without this patronage power Col. Mann and his crowd can not do anything.

But he overlooks the colonel's organizing capabilities and of the susceptibility of women to being organized. The colonel will not have to hold out patronage to them. They have not yet advanced that far. All he will have to do is to form a lot of committees and put all the women on them.

THIS would arouse their interest. It would be something to absorb their excess energy, to get them away from the drudgery of the home: in short, to help them spend that freedom that is newly found.

It is known that the Mann movement expects support not only in Florida and Georgia where the male of the special Hoovercrat is most bitter but also in Virginia, Alabama, North and South Carolina, and in Texas.

Outside of Georgia and Florida, it would seem that the colonel has a fat chance. The old organizations in Virginia, Alabama, North Carolina and Texas, are not dissatisfied. They are being recognized by the administration and have not a serious grievance in the world.

• • • •

BUT in each of these States there are some outsiders, those whom the organization won't let get to the trough, and in every one of these States there are the women.

It was the women who were prepared to raise cain at the recent meeting of the Republican national committee here with Glenn B. Skipper, the committeeman from Florida Skipper, who is Mann's right-hand man, told the women here for the meeting that the patronage committee which Brown set up in Florida had no women on it. And he got their ear on all of the mistreatment that has come to Mann.

There is no secret, in fact, that it is among those outside the recognized organizations in the Southern States, the malcontents, so to speak, and the women that the Mann movement hopes to get its strength. As to whether there are enough malcontents to cause trouble is extremely doubtful.

But the women! Wait until Mann puts them all on committees, makes them all corresponding secretaries or something, and Brown will wish he never heard of the South.

arrested and released under heavy bonds, according to John R. Watkins, district attorney. All but eight of the alleged conspirators live in Detroit, the remaining being residents of New York, Chicago, Toledo and small towns in Ohio and New York.

The indictments are all based on two counts: Violation of the tariff act and the national prohibition law during the period from January 8 to September 18.

The two syndicates are designated as the Sam Rosenfield and Sam Miller rings. Both Rosenfield and Miller have been arrested. Eight members of Miller's gang and three members of Rosenfield's organization have been arrested to date.

The special agents during the last nine months worked side by side with the rum runners, helping smuggle liquor across the Detroit River and adjacent waterways or aiding in the loading of the contraband on trucks or freight cars for delivery, the agents said. Fleets of boats with an aggregate cargo capacity of 2,000 cases were used for the smuggling operations. For their services with the smuggling rings the agents were paid sums totaling several thousand dollars, which have been turned over to the district attorney's office as evidence.

The principal Canadian bases of the two syndicates were located at Goderich and Riverside, Ontario, according to officers. From their points the liquor was smuggled to Port Sanilac on Lake Huron. Later the liquor was taken to storage points on farms along Lake St. Clair and at Bourse.

Chicago was the principal market for beer while most of the whisky, gin and champagne went to New York. Toledo also took a quantity of the beer, the agents said. Eastern consumers were served by rail while Chicago and Toledo received their supplies by truck.

The agents told the grand jury that during their work with the rum runners they suffered heavy losses in Lake St. Clair through seizures made by customs border patrol inspectors. On one occasion the inspectors captured three boats containing 1,200 cases of liquor, they said.

Watkins said the alleged rum runners were stunned by the daring work of the undercover men. The indicted men who already have been arrested were questioned before arraignment by the very men who told the grand jury they had worked side by side with them in the smuggling business.

Police Accuse Owner In "Theft" of His Car

Lloyd Washington Gray, 22, a farmer, of Rockville, Md., was held last night by police upon what they termed receipt of false information from the man Thursday night regarding the theft of his machine.

Police said Gray, after driving his machine off the end of Potomac avenue northwest, into the shallow waters of the Potomc River, reported the theft of his car to both Seventh Precinct police and later to headquarters police.

ment men charge, besides constituting a part of the syndicate's respectable front, may also have given it financial backing, also were under careful scrutiny today.

The authorities, Watts said, want to know whether the banks received any extra fee for carrying the syndicate's accounts in code. The code, used by the banks in reference to the syndicate, he said, was "XL." In one bank the syndicate had been depositing more than $1,000 a day.

Further evidence tending to connect the syndicate, which, the Government men say, held a monopoly on all liquor smuggling from Maine to the Virginia Capes, with Scarface Al Capone, of Chicago, came today when one of Capone's checks for a large amount, made out to heads of the ring, turned up among other papers. Payment on it had been stopped.

Study of the small black account book, seized in the raid Wednesday night at Highlands, N. J., in the old mansion which the syndicate used as its headquarters, and of a large mass of papers, letter files and records taken from its New York office, proved highly interesting to Federal men today. The little black book, for instance, revealed to William J. Calhoun, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, that $30,000 was paid weekly by the ring for protection.

"We have no evidence as yet, however, showing that any particular official was actually bribed," he said.

Capital Schools Join In Tribute to Edison

Washington's schools will join next week in the nation-wide celebration of "Light's Golden Jubilee," the fiftieth anniversary of the perfection of the incandescent light.

Appropriate programs dealing with the life of Thomas A. Edison, particularly in regard to his work in connection with illumination, are to be presented at the assemblies, while in the science classes special emphasis is to be placed on the incandescent light. Celebration of the anniversary in all the schools was ordered by the Board of Education, upon recommendation of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent.

REPORT ON NURSE'S EXAMINATION IS DUE

CHECK ON DRUG ORDERS

New light may be shed on the McPherson murder mystery today when a report is received by the Department of Justice on the chemical analysis made at the University of North Carolina of the viscera of the attractive young nurse, whose body, strangled with the silken cord of her pajamas, was found in her Park Lane apartment on September 14.

At a second autopsy performed on Mrs. McPherson's body by six leading North Carolina physicians on Monday, no bruises, abrasions or fractures were found other than the welts caused by the pajama cord, which was wrapped tightly five times about the girl's throat and knotted.

A complete set of X-ray photographs was made at the autopsy, however, and these, it is understood, are now developed and ready for inspection by the Federal operatives today, when the analytical report also is expected from Dr. James I. Bullitt, professor of pathology at the North Carolina University, who performed the autopsy.

Report Awaited Eagerly.

This report is awaited with particular interest because of the possibility that it may show some traces of drugs or poison in the girl's system.

The Department of Justice is anxious, it is understood, to learn what use was made of numerous prescriptions for narcotics which were obtained by Mrs. McPherson from at least one prominent Washington physician. It is considered extremely doubtful that the nurse herself was addicted to the use of such drugs or that the prescriptions were for her own use, although this question will not be answered definitely until Dr. Bullitt's report is received.

Federal operatives in the meantime are believed to be endeavoring to check up on the testimony of witnesses who have indicated that Mrs. McPherson turned the prescriptions over to a man, either for his own use or for redistribution to other addicts.

The customary stream of witnesses continued to flow through the offices of the Department of Justice yesterday. Among them were Inspector William S. Shelby, former chief of the Detective Bureau, who is believed to have reiterated reasons why he is still convinced that Mrs. McPherson took her own life. In addition, Shelby is understood to have been questioned with regard to certain conditions found in the Park Lane apartment, details of which were no longer clear by the time the Federal operatives took up the trail three weeks after the tragedy.

Thomsons Are Questioned.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot H. Thomson, friends of the McPhersons, also were questioned by the Federal agents yesterday. Thomson, employed in the same bank where the girl's husband, Robert A. McPherson, jr., was a bookkeeper prior to his indictment by the grand jury for the murder of his wife, is believed to have been quizzed in detail regarding his knowledge of the marital relations of the McPhersons. Thomson, who is also a minister of the Church of Christ, performed the marriage ceremony uniting Virginia Hurley and Robert McPherson.

Mrs. Billie Lindsay, a nurse, said to have been intimately acquainted with Virginia McPherson, and a former resident of the Park Lane, is expected to come to Washington today from New York for an interview with agents of the Department of Justice. Federal operatives do not expect that she will be able to cast any light upon the mystery of Mrs. McPherson's death. Published reports that a warrant or supena had been issued for Mrs. Lindsay were denied emphatically yesterday, and it was stated that if she comes to Washington, her appearance will be entirely voluntary.

Salvation Army Theft Brings 10-Year Term

Convicted on a charge of stealing a quantity of clothing from the Salvation Army, Benjamin Lee, colored, was sentenced by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, in District of Columbia Supreme Court, yesterday to serve ten years in the penitentiary.

In passing sentence, the chief justice described the Salvation Army as one of the world's greatest institutions and condemned the Negro for stealing from an organization dedicated to charity. Lee declared the police had put him through the third degree, but the chief justice branded this charge as untrue. Assistant United States Attorney Renah F Camalier prosecuted.

bill. Walsh has previously developed that of 52 Connecticut manufactures, the rates were increased on 44.

Forgets Meaning of Wire.

There was this telegram from Eyanson to Hubbard at one time: "Realize am most unsatisfactory and presumptuous person. Reason week-end's bad. Hearings closed. Recess to Monday. Senator away. Mary arriving for two days. Engaged in rush job on publicity and preparation for conference. Can't you come Monday or thereafter. All point of trip left otherwise."

Eyanson said he could not recall what the telegram meant.

"Your memory," observed Walsh, "like that of many witnesses we interrogate, is very feeble."

Eyanson admitted that Grundy had called and conferred with him at Grundy's office "six or seven times," sometimes about increased rates, sometimes about the administrative provisions of the bill.

Disclaims Interview.

He stoutly denied, however, that he had ever known Grundy before he came to Washington. A newspaper interview in which he was represented as saying "Of course, I know Joe Grundy," was sprung on him but he denied its accuracy and said he had never referred to Grundy as "Joe" in his life.

It was after he had left here for his vacation, Eyanson testified, Grundy called him on the telephone and asked him to come back.

"What did he want you to come back for?"

"I suppose he thought I should remain in Senator Bingham's office."

Explaining his knowledge of Grundy before he met him here, Eyanson said: "Of course, we have all known of the splendid work Mr. Grundy has been doing."

Board's Minutes Read.

Walsh sprang the minutes of the board meeting of the Connecticut association on him, a meeting held some time last spring, and quoted a passage that "their representative will shortly be in Washington to assist Senator Bingham in his office."

The word "representative" was erroneously used, Eyanson said.

"You and Hubbard attested the minutes?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Yes."

There was a manufacturer in Portland, Conn., who had the picture of the whole transaction that the committee is trying to develop now. Answering a letter from the association on the advisability of sending a man down here, he wrote, under date of March 6, 1929:

"I can see nothing but good in our having a representative in Mr. Bingham's office for the tariff discussion. If theer is anything that manufacturers are vitally interested in, it should be the tariff, and I think that the matter of the amount we spend for such work should be left in the hands of our officials.

"Worth All It Costs."

"They are in a position to pick the right man, and the right man will be worth all that it costs us. I believe in this class of work you get what you pay for. Therefore, I am with you 100 per cent on anything you do."

Bingham has testified that in February he wrote the asssociation asking if it could loan him a man to assist him in the tariff.

Eyanson continued to insist, in the face of this letter, that he had no relations with the association, was not its representative while in Bingham's office.

"Frankly, I don't believe you think it," said Walsh.

"I am under oath," said Eyanson.

"I know it," replied Walsh.

About That Salary.

Senator Robinson took up the matter of his returning the $350-odd, which he received from the Government to Henry M. Barry, clerk of the Senate territories and insular affairs committe, of which Bingham is chairman, and whose place Eyanson took to serve as the tariff expert.

Eyanson testified that he didn't say anything to Bingham when he handed the salary back to him for payment to Barry.

"There was no conversation between you about the matter at any time?" asked Senator Robinson.

"No."

"Well, there must have been a sort of mental telepathy about it. When you both knew you were not to keep the Government's money."

"Strange as it may seem, that is substantially correct," Eyanson replied.

Check Not Yet Returned.

Eyanson had testified that he supposed Bingham knew that he would not accept any money for his work, yet when he returned from his vacation there was a $1,000 check from Bingham. He plans to return it when he gets around to it, he said. There is no hurry, although he received it September 2. It stared the committee in the face throughout the hearing.

He was asked why he had not returned it yesterday afternoon.

"Well, Senator Bingham had a pretty severe ordeal in the morning," he said, "and I had other engagements in the afternoon."

Senator Borah, who sat with the committee for a while, said he had understood the witness to say that he was worried about this check.

Explains Why He "Worried."

"Just what about it worried you?" the senator asked.

"I don't recall that I said I was worried," Eyanson replied. "I wasn't worried any more than I would naturally be at leaving a check of this size in my other clothes and in view of the importance the committee attaches to it."

Senators Caraway and Walsh pounced on him together.

"Oh, you testified you were worried," said Caraway.

"Do you now want to give it as your statement?" pursued Walsh, "that your only worry was as you have just said?"

"Yes."

In another colloquy about the check, about when he intended to return it to Bingham, Eyanson asked Blaine:

"What would you do about it?"

"When you unscramble your various employers, I will be able to advise you," Blaine replied.

Didn't Know His Title.

Blaine developed that Eyanson did not know just in what capacity he was working for Bingham, and that he knew nothing about the work of the territories and insular affairs committee. He recited the oath that Eyanson took to "well and faithfully discharge" his duties as a clerk of this committee. Eyanson insisted that it was his understanding that the senators had a right to juggle their clerks around.

Senator Caraway returned to the question of the real reason of his taking the oath as a clerk.

"Wasn't it simply subterfuge so that you could get in and find out what the finance committee was doing?" he asked.

"I didn't consider it so. I understood it was to put me under the discipline of the committee."

"Oh—discipline—what discipline?" Caraway demanded.

"Well, the discipline of the Senate——"

"You never heard of the phrase before you heard Senator Bingham mention it here yesterday."

"It has been running through my mind for sometime," Eyanson insisted.

In an executive session after the hearing, the committee authorized Senator Caraway to look around for a "legal" investigator. There is no telling how far the committee plans to go with the case. Eyanson's boss, E. Kent Hubbard, is to appear Monday, the next hearing.

Birger Gangster Believed Caught

Man Thought to Be Ritter, Herrin Outlaw, Held at Gulfport.

Benton, Ill., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Sheriff James Pritchard prepared tonight to leave for Gulfport, Miss., where he will attempt to identify positively a man arrested there and identified by New Orleans police as Connie Ritter, sought for nearly three years in connection with three Charlie Birger gang murders in the Herrin section of southern Illinois.

Ritter was a chief lieutenant of Birger, one of the most desperate criminals in the history of Illinois, and was sometimes called the master mind and the "pay off man" of the outlaw band that terrorized southern Illinois for several years.

Pritchard was notified by Sheriff Joseph Hemens of Gulfport that the man held there had been identified as Ritter by means of a photograph. Pritchard said that as soon as identification is positively established, immediate steps would be taken to return the desperado here.

He is under indictment for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, December 12, 1926, a crime for which Birger was hanged last year. Ritter also is charged with complicity in the brutal murder of State Highway Patrolman Lory L. Price, and his wife, Ethel, slain by the gang in January, 1927.

ed out to look below, and then asked to be shown another more desirable room. The bellboy said he then accompanied her to a room on the tenth floor where she again walked to a window, lifted it to the full height, and leaned out with an apparent desire to look below.

"I think I'll take this one," Green quoted the woman as saying. "I'll be down in a few minutes to register."

Returning to the front desk, Green said he waited a few minutes and then becoming apprehensive at the woman's delay in appearing, suggested that a telephone call be made. When no response was received a few moments later, Green ran to the room and found only the woman's hat, her coat and a pocketbook lying on a table.

Peering from the open window, he saw the body lying below. A short time earlier several other employes of the hotel, hearing a crash on the skylight of the court, began a similar investigation which revealed the lifeless form outstretched, face downward, on the roof.

A card found in her pocketbook led to her identification, which was substantiated by an examination of her effects at the hotel.

A large crowd watched the procedure with keen interest, but when the flames would suddenly flare up anew, the onlookers would be startled into jumping back on the sidewalk a few steps.

The long blue and yellowish blaze shot back and forth over the power rail, creating an aurora borealis effect in the night. The disturbing plow was not removed for almost a half hour; but when it was, the fire disappeared.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

GAMBLING BANNED AT FREDERICK FAIR

Authorities Close Dozen of "Games" on Last Day, After Complaints.

10,000 CROWD GROUNDS

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 18.—Perfect weather marked the closing of the Frederick Fair today. The crowd, variously estimated from 10,000 to 12,000, went to the grounds early and remained late.

Operators of gaming tables made a last chance effort on unsuspecting persons and in some instances reaped a harvest. One man reported to police the loss of $130 and a number said they were fleeced out of smaller amounts. About a dozen of the devices were closed by authorities.

More than 100 students of high schools of Maryland took part in the annual cattle judging contest. Competition among the youthful farmers was spirited. Another large crowd visited the Federation of Rural Womens Clubs exhibit. Body of Virginian Back From Russia

Salem Hero One of War Heroes Brought Home After Ten Years.

The body of a Virginian, who lost his life in Russia with the 339th Infantry U. S. A., is being returned for burial, it was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster general of the Army.

The Virginian is Jesse C. Jackson, of Salem, Va., who was a private in Headquarters Company. His father is J. Henry Jackson.

Altogether the bodies of 86 soldiers are being shipped back to the United States. Twenty-eight are unidentified, while the names and relatives of the remaining 58 are known. For the most part they were residents of Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. One Pennsylvanian is numbered among them, namely Herbert S. Kistler, of Lancaster, who was in Company I. His mother, Mrs. Annie Lane Kistler, lives at 436 Nevin street, Lancaster.

NATIONAL CHAMPION COWS ARE SELECTED

200,000 SEE DAIRY SHOW

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Judging of cattle in the National Dairy Show was virtually completed today with selection of grand champions in the Jersey and Holstein breeds.

Some judging will be done tomorrow, but the national grand champions in the five leading dairy breeds, Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, and Holstein, have been chosen and they will be exhibited tomorrow and Sunday, the closing days, along with the sweepstakes winners in the national poultry show, also selected today, and winners of $35,000 in prizes at the National Horse Show.

Attendance at the exposition neared the 200,000 mark today and had eclipsed all previous attendance records for this national event. Sweepstakes winners in the national horse show, also being held in connection with the dairy show, will be selected Sunday.

The highest award among Jersey cows was given today to Design's Oxford Price of the Twin Oaks Farm, Morristown, N. J. This victory gave the Twin Oaks Farm two grand champions at the exposition, the only exhibitor to attain that honor. Yesterday the New Jersey breeders won the Jersey bull grand championship with Fern's Signal of Oaklands.

The grand championship Holstein cow named today is Johanna Pietertje Artis Creamelle, owned by the Jefferson County Asylum, Jefferson, Wis. The main poultry sweepstakes went to the Havemeyer Farm of Islip, N. Y., breeders of White Wyandottes. A cockerel of the Havemeyer Farm was named the championship bird of the show. The champion cock, hen, pullet and pen also were chosen from the Havemeyer exhibit, which was judged the best display at the show. A White Wyandotte cockerel from this same farm was judged the best bird in the American class.

An Orpington pullet from the Charles J. Tanner Farm at Greenfield, Ind., was named the best in the English class, and a Minorca hen of S. M. Rinehart, of Overland, Mo., the best in the Mediterranean class.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY VIRGINIA POLICE

Uniform Traffic Signals Are Given Their Approval in Resolution.

MASONS HOLD BANQUET

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

James M. Hayes, jr., motor vehicle commissioner of Virginia, was elected president of the Virginia Police Executives Association, which closed its fourth annual meeting here yesterday. Roanoke was selected as the next convention city. Other officers chosen were: W. A. Vest, chief of police of Salem, first vice president; H. W. Churn, chief of police of Suffolk, second vice president; E. L. Lucas, of Luray, sheriff of Page County, sergeant at arms; W. W. Campbell, captain of police of Alexandria, and C. D. Weisiger, police sergeant of Blackstone, committeemen, and Morton Wallerstein, Richmond, secretary.

Before adjournment the association adopted resolutions approving the adoption of uniform traffic signals, to be standardized by police departments throughout the State; a driver's permit to be required of all drivers, to curb careless and negligent drivers; that each sheriff and police department be required to take fingerprints of offenders and forward them to the State and National bureaus of identification, and the establishment of regional public schools. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Police Chief Phillip T. Bell, of Kearney, N. J., president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, for his attendance at the convention.

In the absence of National Prohibition Commissioner James Doran, who telegraphed that he would be unable to be present, Dr. R. B. Rhees, deputy National commissioner, spoke, stressing the necessity for the cooperation of the city, State and town in the enforcement of the prohibition law, the Federal machinery, he said, being inadequate to handle all the work.

R. Q. Merrick, Federal prohibition administrator of Richmond, told the meeting that his force is entirely inadequate to cope with the situation, and must depend upon the State and city forces to aid in enforcement work. Splendid cooperation is being given in Virginia, he said, and quick action is obtained in the State courts in liquor cases.

Leroy Hodges, managing director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, delivered an address on the problem of industrialism of Virginia, and said that the three most important elements in the work are vision, a comprehensive State program, and a militant, loyal civic spirit. The industrial development of the State brings new problems, he said, which must be met by the police departments. Without intending to reflect on the ability of any individual, he said, in order to meet conditions now facing the State it will be necessary that the police departments be overhauled.

S. W. Ironmonger, chief of police of Norfolk, delivered an address on dilapidated cars, and said the driver and the junk yard are equally responsible for the conditions now obtaining in this respect. The discarded car problem, he said, must eventually be met from a public safety standpoint.

Sergt. W. A. Toler, of Richmond, suggested that the fingerprint of the right forefinger be placed on automobile license permits granted so as to identify the driver more certainly than at present.

The Scottish Rite reunion banquet, held last night in the armory hall, was attended by 750 members of the order, and a number of noted Masons delivered short talks. An address of welcome was delivered by Charles C. Wenrich, venerable master of the Lodge of Perfection, and the response was by John H. Cowles, soverign grand commander of the Southern jurisdiction. Several members of the supreme council made short talks.

The thirty-fifth degree was conferred upon the large class yesterday afternoon by the Chesapeake Consistory, of Baltimore; at 4 o'clock a review was by John H. Cowles, sovereign grand commander and members of the supreme council by Robert S. Crump, sovereign grand inspector of Virginia.

The thirty-second degree was conferred by active members of the thirty-third degree, Southern jurisdiction of the United States, and the cast taking part in the degree work follows:

Thirty-second degree, master of the royal secrets (conferred by active members of the thirty-third degree)—Venerable master of Kadosh, J. Edward Richardson, thirty-third, degree; prior, James C. Jones, thirty-third degree; preceptor, Frederick T. Dorton, thirty-second degree; marshal of ceremonies, William Booth Price, thirty-third degree; marshal of the guard, A. M. Sherwood, thirty-third degree; vedic hymns, Rev. Edgar Carpenter, thirty-second degree.

Camp guards—Harry F. Kennedy, thirty-second degree, captain of the guard; H. A. Lipscombe, thirty-second degree, director; B. D. Edwards, thirty-second degree; W. A. Royster, thirty-second degree; F. G. Faulconer, thirty-second degree; W. T. Dent, thirty-second degree; H. W. Wade, thirty-second degree; C. C. Wenrich, thirty-second degree, K. C. C. H.; H. D. Carter, thirty-second degree; L. P. Chauncey, thirty-second degree, K. C. C. H.; J. C. Cox, thirty-second degree; W. M. Poindexter, thirty-second degree; G. H. Walker, sr., thirty-second degree; R. W. Nixon, thirty-second degree, K. C. C. H.; J. H. Kretchmer, thirty-second degree; J. C. Crump, thirty-second degree; W. W. Campbell, thirty-second degree, standard bearer.

St. Andrew's Cross—F. G. Faulconer, thirty-second degree; J. H. Kretchmer, thirty-second degree; W. T. Dent, thirty-second degree; H. W. Wade, thirty-second degree; H. D. Carter, thirty-second degree; M. D. Edwards, thirty-second degree; J. C. Cox, thirty-second degree; J. P. Carter, thirty-second degree.

Among the members of the class receiving the degrees at this reunion, which was the first ceremony of any kind to be held in the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple, now in course of construction on Shooters Hill, were Harry Flood Byrd, governor of Virginia; Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, U. S. M. C.; former Gov. Westmoreland Davis, of Virginia; W. H. McMurray, of New York, architect in charge of the design of the new temple, and many other distinguished men.

Mrs. Henry S. Eley, of Suffolk, State president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, and also president of the Virginia branch of the International Order of Kings Daughters and Sons, was the guest of honor of the Cameron Club at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in Christ Church parish hall.

Miss Helen Norris Cummings, president of the Cameron Club, presided and introduced Mrs. Eley and also Mrs. M. W. Liebert, of New York, the president of the International Order of the Kings Daughters and Sons, both of whom have been passing the week in Alexandria, attending the State convention of that order.

Mrs. Eley spoke to the club members on the importance of unity in club work, and also the value of reporting all activities of local clubs to the respective State chairmen, who in turn present the report of State activities to the national organization. Mrs. Eley said getting together is unity; working together is progress and keeping together is success. She also asked the Alexandria club to be the first in the State to contribute toward the endowment fund of the national federation, helping the State to meet the required assessment.

Mrs. Liebert gave a short talk, in which she stated the aims of the federated clubs and her order are the same, to live, not to be ministered to, but to minister, and to lend a helping hand to humanity.

The business session was followed by a social meeting in charge of Miss Constance Roush and two vocal numbers were given by Mrs. George E. Pickett and Mrs. Harrie White.

The Anne McCarty Ramsay Chapter, Children of the American Revolution, and the Washington Society of Alexandria will hold a joint observance of the 148th anniversary of the surrender of Yorktown at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, at the tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary Soldier in the yard of the old Presbyterian Meeting House.

Lieut. du Ban, of the French Embassy, as the representative of that republic, will place a wreath on the tomb, as will also representatives of the two participating societies.

Mrs. C. A. S. Sinclair, regent of Mount Vernon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will have charge of the children and William B. McGroarty, president of the Washington Society, will be master of ceremonies.

A school boy patrol was organized yesterday at the Xaverian Brothers School, North Washington street, by W. Leitch, the local scoutmaster. The patrol is composed of the following high school students of the school: William Burroughs, Beverley Craddock, William Kelliget and Elwood Wheatley.

E. W. Ward, Alexandria avenue, Braddock, has been complaining at police headquarters that his hennery is being robbed, and on Wednesday last he fired at an intruder who was seeking to gain entrance but could not ascertain if the culprit was hit.

Police Sergeant Heber Thompson and Policeman Quartermouse, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, saw the thief emerge from the hen house and were astounded to find a large collie dog with a hen in his mouth. He dropped the hen, but escaped capture.

4 MEN ARE TAKEN ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Three Cars Are Seized by the Police in Prince Georges County.

1,100 QUARTS ARE TAKEN

Four men were arrested and more than 1,100 quarters of alleged liquor was confiscated yesterday by police of Prince George County on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

Maceo A. Hill, who gave his address as N street southeast, near South Capitol, was arrested when he attempted to escape from a truck he was driving. Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown, Patrolman Claude Reese and Constable Andrew Gasch signaled Hill to stop as he was passing through Berwyn, Md. He stopped the truck and tried to run away, they said. Police caught him and later found 816 quarts of alleged rye whisky in the truck he was driving. He was released in $1,000 bail on a charge of transporting liquor.

Robert Battle, colored, P street northwest, near Seventh, was arrested by the trio after he had been halted near the University of Maryland. The officers ordered him to stop but he ignored the command, officers say. Deputy Sheriff Brown attempted to head him off and the cars crashed. Battle rode his machine into the flower gardens of the university and ran. He was caught after a short chase. He is held in default of $500 bail on the same charge. About 200 quarts of alleged corn were seized.

Earlier in the day officers arrested Charles Cummings and Steven Nunez, both colored, of Baltimore. The men had stopped for a soft drink in Muirkirk, Md. The officers saw liquor trickling from the compartment in the rear of the roadster they were driving. Both were arrested and 200 quarts of imported liquors were seized. They are being held in default of 500.

All will be given a hearing Wednesday in Hyattsville.

DR. ABBOTT SCORES PRESENT CONDITIONS

Crooked Generation Called Menace at Disciples of Christ Conclave.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Strasburg, Va., Oct. 18.—"If Jesus Christ were to speak directly to men today he would tell them to save themselves from this crooked generation," declared Dr. B. A. Abbott, St. Louis, editor, of the Christian Evangelist, in his valedictory address which brought the fifty-fourth convention of the Disciples of Christ in Virginia to a close this morning.

"Every age has been an age of sin," he said, "but it appears more rife today. We can not deal with the situation by ignoring it. The only balm one can apply is to make the crooked generation straight.

"Too many people are committing suicide today. This is because they are trying to make a heaven out of the wrong things. When man tries to follow the spirit instead of the flesh, the passion of immortality will be upon him.

"Prior to Dr. Abbott's address the committee on time and place reported that Lynchburg College had been selected for the next convention, which will be held some time prior to September 15, 1930. Dr. C. M. Gordon, Norfolk, was elected president, the Rev. Arthur Wake, Strasburg, vice president, and the Rev. A. C. Meadows, Galax, secretary-treasurer of the 1930 organization. Mrs. J. O. Helsabeck, Richmond, was reelected president of the Virginia Women's Missionary Society.

Officers of the Virginia Christian Missionary Society were elected as follows: Walter Holliday, president; Perry C. Richmond, recording secretary; H. W. Ware, treasurer, Z. P. Richardson, auditor.

THE PEOPLE'S ATTORNEY.

The Senate has just perpetrated one of those triumphs of muddy thinking which have disgusted the country and caused it to give up hope of obtaining the benefit of wise statesmanship as applied to their economic affairs. After having provided that the Tariff Commission shall be a fact-finding body in the interest of all the people, charged with reporting its findings and recommendations to Congress, the Senate now adopts an amendment creating a monstrosity called the "consumers' counsel," at a salary of $10,000 a year.

This officer is to be "in the legislative branch of the Government." He is to champion the cause of the common people against the remorseless Tariff Commission, which is itself an agent of the people. Before the commission, as agent of the people, can report its findings to Congress, another agent of the people, the special agent of the people, is to have the right to be heard in behalf of the "ultimate consumer."

The "consumers' counsel" is to be a person who has never before acted as a lobbyist. He is to have power to subpoena witnesses and to compel the Tariff Commission to make any investigation upon which he desires information, regardless of the cost of the proceedings. He is to have clerical assistants and experts, furnished by the Tariff Commission.

The Senate has discovered a plan that offers unlimited possibilities of expansion. The "consumers' counsel" will be the official lobbyist of the "legislative branch of the Government." He is to have the extraordinary power of determining for himself what the "consuming public" wants. He is to be the spokesman of that mythical multitude who toil not, neither do they spin, but spend their time exclusively in making purchases at retail. Somehow, by undiscovered methods, the Senate has concluded that the "consumers" of the country are in a class by themselves, and likely to be outraged by the Tariff Commission or by Congress itself in making the tariff unless they are defended by their own particular lobbyist.

The Tariff Commission is placed in the position of being an enemy of the public and a tool of conspirators who would boost the tariff. Its reports are not to be taken at face value by Congress, but are to be subject to suspicion unless approved by the consumers' counsel.

Why has the Senate confined this scheme to the tariff? There are other commissions that should be subjected to the espionage and supervision of "consumers' counsel." The Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Service Commission, the General Accounting Office, the Bureau of Efficiency, the Board of Mediation, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Trade Commission, the Shipping Board, and many other boards and commissions are running wild, and not one of them is subject to the scrutiny of a people's counsel. The executive departments are not provided with counsel to protect the common people against Government injustice. Congress itself ought to have a consumers' counsel as a check against outrage of the people's rights.

Now that the Senate has discovered that the people's governmental agencies do not represent the people, but must be watched by special attorneys representing the people, let it do a thorough job. Let it hire a people's attorney to watch every department, commission, court, bureau, or other agency of the Government. After that is done it will be time to consider how the people's attorneys shall be kept faithful to the people.

WORLD-WIDE FARM MARKETS.

In the announcement that the Federal Farm Board will support the Department of Agriculture in an effort to establish a world-wide marketing service may be seen the first definite move to deal with farm surpluses. Members of the board see the need for more complete information on crop conditions, available supply, and price trends before the present export trade of agricultural products can be greatly extended. It is proposed to furnish agriculture with foreign information on these conditions in much the same way that domestic conditions are now reported.

Action was taken by the board after consideration of a report from Dean Edwin F. Gay, Dr. Alonzo Taylor and Asher Hobson, marketing specialists, who have made a study of foreign agricultural stations. They found the present foreign information service inadequate. It will require, they reported, no less than ten foreign posts to cover the important producing and consuming areas. Establishment of such stations at London, Berlin, Paris, Marseilles, Copenhagen, Bucharest, Buenos Aires, Melbourne, Johannesburg and Shanghai was recommended. The Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and State would cooperate in furnishing the needed information.

Such a service could be depended upon for current data on crop prices, acreage sown, stock on hand, crop conditions and demand for every sort of American farm products in all parts of the world. National marketing organizations would be in a position to direct surpluses to the strongest markets abroad and avoid glutting of domestic markets. The plan should steadily expand the export trade of foodstuffs grown in this country. It stands out in sharp contrast to the debenture nostrum, on which the agricultural bloc in the Senate bases its hopes for disposition of surplus crops.

EXAMINATION OF VETERANS.

Medical science has made great progress in the battle against infectious disease with serums, vaccines, isolation, &c., and today it turns its attention to battling the so-called degenerative diseases. These diseases do not lend themselves readily to treatment, and the campaign against them is one of prevention rather than cure. In this connection the periodic physical examination is looked upon as of utmost importance. Several large life insurance companies have embraced in their programs the periodic physical examination with good results, and the Gorgas Memorial Institute, organized to carry forward the life-saving work of the late Gen. Gorgas, has as one of its chief aims the making available to all of facilities for periodic physical examinations.

In a resolution adopted recently the Vincent B. Costello Post of the American Legion urges the amendment of the World War veterans' act to authorize and direct the Veterans' Bureau "to inaugurate a system of free periodic physical examinations for all holders of Government life insurance policies." The examinations would be offered on a purely voluntary basis in conjunction with the work of the regional offices of the bureau. The Costello post contends that such a system would not only give additional value to Government insurance policies but, in addition, would enable the Veterans' Bureau to build up data and records relating to claims. The cost, according to the veterans, would be recovered many times, a contention that seems to be borne out by the experience of various life insurance companies. Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University, says in discussing periodic physical examinations:

> Nor is it difficult to understand why the cost of this service is readily recovered when we consider how few lives it is necessary to prolong in order to recover the expense even in a large group. For instance, at a flat rate of $3 each the medical examination of a group of 5,000 people annually would cost $15,000 and, with the average policy of $2,000, the cost of this service would be saved in interest alone if each life were extended an average of eleven days.

The fact that a periodic physical examination of its policyholders, or as many of them as would avail themselves of the opportunity, would save money for the Veterans' Bureau is important in itself, but of far greater importance is the fact that such a program would prolong life and would be of great educational value in advancing the life extension cause. Sooner or later the American people will learn that a periodic examination of their bodies is no less important than an annual overhauling of their motor cars, and if the Veterans' Bureau were permitted to take the lead in spreading this thought much good would result.

INDUSTRY AND THE TARIFF.

Last year business failed to respond to the myth that a presidential election is always accompanied by a slump. This year the commercial world has likewise scoffed at tradition by refusing to be disturbed by revision of the tariff. There is ample ground, however, for believing that a radical change in administration, or a revolution in tariff policies, does affect business.

Evidence of substantial commercial progress is contained in practically every report of the year's activities thus far, in spite of the tariff muddle on Capitol Hill. A recent statement from Secretary of Commerce Lamont denied rumors that a depression in business is impending. Industrial and commercial activities during the first nine months of 1929 continued on the same high level that has characterized American business during the last few years, he said. The output of pig iron and steel ingots gained 17 per cent over last year. Consumption of silk and other textile fibers increased. Dividends and interest payments were larger than for any other similar period, and show a gain of 12 per cent over the preceding year. New sales in life insurance broke all records. Automobile production was greater than in any other similar period, despite a decline in recent weeks. A decrease of 11 per cent is noted in the amount of defaulted liabilities of failing business firms.

This optimistic evidence of the Nation's business health is corroborated by a report from the Bureau of Labor Statistics to the effect that industrial employment is at its highest level since 1927. The increase for the single month of September was .8 per cent in numbers and 1.2 per cent in wages.

Foreign trade is likewise running ahead of last year. Figures of the Department of Commerce show an increase of nearly $300,000,000 in exports for the first nine months. The value of imports gained by approximately the same amount. While politicians and economists of the alarmist school have been raising the cry that prospects of a higher tariff on some products would ruin American foreign trade, commercial interests have been expanding their markets.

This continuous activity while Congress is tinkering with the foundation structure on which industry is built shows remarkable confidence in American resourcefulness. Industry has held to the belief that there will be no change in the American policy of protection, and that the weak spots in the tariff will be strengthened. Those industries, including agriculture, which are not now fully protected are entitled to share in the general prosperity. The whole country is looking to Congress for equalization of competition through adjustment of tariff rates. Failure to make such an adjustment could only be regarded as plain dereliction of duty.

RADIO COMMISSION'S POWERS.

On Monday last the Supreme Court of the United States consented to review the decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals setting aside the order of the Radio Commission restricting the broadcasting time of radio station WGY. The case is of importance in connection with the general regulation of radio. When the commission worked out its general reallocation plan it ordered WGY to share time with a Pacific Coast station, but WGY, contending that it had property rights in the channel it had been utilizing, refused to comply with the order and, instead, sought and obtained a court order under which it has since been operating. The WGY case is looked upon as the test by which the fate of radio regulation will be decided. If the commission should be overruled there will be nothing to prevent other dissatisfied stations from ignoring its orders.

In the meantime, it remains to be seen how Congress will deal with the Radio Commission. The commission was created in February, 1927, with administrative functions for a period of one year, and it was to become a purely appellate body thereafter. It was unable to complete the reorganization of the radio system in that space of time, and over considerable opposition its term of existence as an administrative body was continued for another year. At the conclusion of that period it was obvious that control of broadcasting could not be returned to the Department of Commerce, and again, in the face of opposition, the life of the commission was extended. Under the present law its life as an administrative body will expire December 31.

In view of the unsettled state of the radio allocation system it would seem to be necessary for Congress to extend the life of the commission.

A LONG LOOK AHEAD

From the Boston Transcript.

All sorts of disparagements have been poured out upon the "machine age" in which we are said to live. It has been charged with subjecting man to a regime of boilers, pistons, cogwheels and pulleys which makes a mere mechanism of his mind and deprives him of all initiative of his own. In former times the worker who had only the rudest tools to supplement his hands is said to have been in command of every path toward invention; today, the critics assert, our toilers are held down by the iron law of a system which, allowing no deviation from the rules it prescribes, makes them an unchangeable part of its own mechanical self. But there is another way of viewing the machine age, and it has just been championed by the man whose achievements in the field of wireless have won the attention of the world. For, as Guglielmo Marconi sees the situation, humanity's future depends, not on emancipation from the machine, but on the "slavery" it is alleged to impose.

How is it to be done? The electrical expert rests his case on things already accomplished and on things he believes to be now on the way. And wireless, which is to link up the countries more closely than ever, is only a beginning. The transmutation of metals, though not yet possible on a large scale, he regards as already "an accomplished fact." As sails came in to replace oars, so windpower found its substitute in steampower; sooner or later oil-power will be ousted by a universal reliance on "current" as a source of energy. Then the splitting of the atom is to be looked for, making it possible to utilize power sources of inconceivable vastness. "A pound of matter," Marconi says, "will propel ships like the Leviathan or the Bremen across the ocean." "A pencil like this," he told an interviewer, who saw him take a small pencil from his pocket, "will be able to push tons."

What, he was asked, of the effects on human industry and especially on human beings? "The only physical work remaining," replied Marconi, "will be exercise to keep our bodies in trim. The human species will change; perhaps our limbs will atrophy. As science advances there will be less and less work for human hands and for human legs. Our brains will develop at the expense of our bodies. In any case there will be less physical travail and more intelligent work."

Nor did the expert pause after saying that hygiene and bio-chemistry will yet teach mankind "how to prolong its years far beyond threescore and ten;" he asserted that, as matter in the organism continually renews itself, there is no scientific reason why this process should not be indefinitely extended, making death "unnecessary." And there was an obvious widening out of that forecast when he added a statement of his inability to reconcile complete extinction by death with "the eternal economy of nature." Yet Marconi wisely declined to name the year or period when our further utilization of the mechanical forces will bring in a race of supermen whereof even Nietzsche never dreamed.

THE AMERICAN "GALLUS."

Something should be done about suspenders, says the New York Herald Tribune. It is disillusioning to realize that the age which has perfected the steam riveter, the airplane, the thermos bottle and the zipper, and beautified the icebox, the umbrella, the filling station, the female stocking and the male knickerbocker, has done but little for that cardinal necessity of male attire, the old-fashioned suspender.

If only the manufacturers would take this matter to heart, men not only could but would take off their coats and show their suspenders as proudly as they flaunt their neckties. And that would be the beginning of a sartorial revolution which would mark an epoch in the history of American manners.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AT THE CLOSE.

He had riches, place and power,
Yet there came that fatal hour
Which to all men shall arrive
And to miss none can contrive.

Outside busy men were doing
Dreary tasks and goals pursuing.
They were seeking all he'd sought
As upon his life he thought.

Clear of brain and eye he pondered
On the paths o'er which he'd wandered
Seeking to recall the things
Unto which man's memory clings.

Strange, thought he, at my December
Victories I scarce remember.
Strange, now that the winds blow cold
I am little warmed by gold.

Curious these thoughts that fill me,
Power and place no longer thrill me.
Days of friendship's joys are all

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: Would it surprise you to learn that thousands of women in this land handicap, poison and eventually kill the men they love?

It's a fact. They do it in ignorance, but the result is just as tragic as though they had planned it in malice.

We are a nation without good cooks. Our national vice is frying. And the result is a rich harvest for sanitariums, "nerve specialists" and the makers of nostrums designed to cure indigestion.

Any good doctor will tell you, if your school books haven't, that nine-tenths of all human ills can be traced to the colon and the stomach, and that all of these have their origin in faulty diet.

Let that sink in. Nine-tenths of the ills suffered by men and children are due to the incompetence of your sex.

You took one year of domestic science in the public school, and liked it. You learned to do simple sewing and talked glibly of calories and vitamines; but the little you know is just sufficient to ruin some man's digestive system if you marry without further experience in the kitchen.

It isn't fair. No man can win your respect and love unless he is successful—unless he knows how to bring home the bacon. And yet you will make a mess of cooking the bacon after he brings it—unless you buckle down and learn something now.

Don't get the foolish modern notion that cooking is an undignified task for menials. A good cook ranks just as high as a good physician—and does more good.

The scientist who finds a cure for disease is honored by the world, and those who prevent disease rank with the great. You know that.

Well, the woman who keeps her household healthy by providing a balanced, appealing and easily digested diet is doing the same great work on a smaller scale and has equal reason to be proud of her skill.

Learn to cook, honey. Prepare yourself to give some man and your own children a square deal. If you marry one rich enough to hire a dozen cooks, your knowledge of food values will come in handy still—for cooks you can hire are enemies of the human race.

Don't think I'm joking, dear. It's the woman's job to manage her household wisely and keep its members in the pink of condition.

If you don't train yourself to handle the job well, you will cheat and handicap the man who devotes his life to you.

Some girls think marriage a bum career. Interior decorating is, too, if you never learn to do it right and remain a fourth-rater. Love

DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

TALKIES FOR THE CHURCHES.

Mr. William Fox, the movie magnate, proposes to put talking pictures in the churches of America, thus making it possible for the greatest clergymen of the country to be heard in every parish in the land. Look out for announcements any day now:

COMING SOON!
THE REV. DR. S. PARKES CADMAN
IN
TODAY ONLY!
THE REV. DR. JOHN ROCHE STRATON
IN SUPERSERMONS
(A William Fox Production)
First Time Outside New York!
BISHOP MANNING
(In Natural Colors)
Frank Borzage Direction
NEXT WEEK!
RABBI WISE
With a Roxy Presentation.

And why not? Why shouldn't churchgoers throughout the country be given a chance to hear the church leaders of the day?

• • • •

Mr. Fox's plans should win the cooperation of the churches, and when they do one of the next logical developments will be the mechanical service. This will eliminate the terrible singing of the average church choir and do away with the wheezy organs.

• • • •

Nothing in American religious life is quite so bad as the choir singing. The empty pews in countless parishes are due in no small degree to the fact there is a limit to human endurance when up against nasal tenors and awful lady sopranos with faulty bellows.

• • • •

It is impossible to reconcile the noises coming from small town church choirs with the spirit of peace on earth, good will to men.

• • • •

Why the churches have tolerated the defective upper registers so long is a mystery, and it is the hope of many long suffering parishioners that the Fox idea may make it possible for every church in the land to have the best music by the finest organists and the greatest singers the country boasts.

• • • •

The churches are face to face with a big opportunity. They should take Mr. Fox at his word and give him no chance to change his mind.

DISILLUSIONED.

When I was young I loved a lad,
To me the prince of men,
And when I lost him I was sure
I'd never smile again.

Last night I saw him on the street,
My motor engine stalled,
My heart beat twenty thousand cheers—
For he was fat and bald.
—Florence Marshall.

W. L. R. refers to the political "talkies" as commotion pictures.

A huge lake is reported moving on Miami from the Hialeah region. "I hope my lot is not in," says Elmer Twitchell.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

The fearful toll taken by drunken automobile drivers is enough to stir the authorities to most rigorous vigilance, says the Indianapolis News. It is a sad and forbidding spectacle when a sober and careful driver causes even an unavoidable accident. But to see a driver foolish enough to indulge in the poisonous liquor that bootleggers sell, driving like a lunatic through streets crowded with traffic and necessarily used by pedestrians, including children and women, is maddening enough to cause a rebellious mental state. Yet these drunken fools are in the streets every day, causing death and ruin wherever they go. They seem, too, to be able to employ attorneys and to rally around them defenders ready to help bring about acquittal. The automobile is a powerful and potentially dangerous machine even in the hands of a driver in full possession of all his senses. Any one who destroys his capacity to drive safely commits a crime against his family and society. Rigid enforcement of the law and a public sentiment sufficient to sustain prosecution is the demand of the day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Change of Color Scheme in Southern Republican Politics, But the Same Old Appetite.

To the Editor og The Post—Sir: The political wiseacres are mightily interested in the break between Chairman Huston and his erstwhile political pal, Horace Mann, over Southern political control. It seems that now, as formerly, the bone of contention is the division of the spoils. The Negro political leadership was put out of commission, allegedly, because of perpetual squabbles and scandals over patronage. We were led to believe that patronage mongering was at an end. It was triumphantly announced that the new Republican party, reenforced by high-minded Hoovercrats, under white leadership, would, in a spirit of high-minded and disinterested devotion, build up a competing party in the South.

But just as we were about to become reconciled to the loftiness of the new regime, lo and behold! we are confronted by the age-old greediness for the political flesh pot. The triumvirate of Brown, Burke and Newton, which President Hoover ordained to control Southern patronage and policy, does not seem willing to let Horace Mann, the erstwhile oracle and mouthpiece of the renaissance of Southern politics, partake of what John C. Calhoun called "the cohesive power of public plunder." The patronage of the South amounts to $100,000,000 a quadrennium. The handling and disposition of this fund constitutes the chief industry of Southern Republican politicians. Take away his patronage, and, like Othello, his occupation is gone.

The faction left out in the cold threatens the old-time game of fostering a set of delegates to give the Grand Old Party trouble at the national convention. It hardly requires superior political sagacity to discern that the renomination of President Hoover is involved under thin disguise. Is the Republican party to be scandalized in the future as in the past by the unseemly squabble over Southern delegates? If so, the mere change in the color scheme of the leadership will boot but little benefit. We shall see what we shall see, but we shall certainly look with a keen and penetrating eye.

Washington Chamber of Commerce Starts New Year of Intensive Work and Bespeaks Public Cooperation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: October 8 last marked the termination of the current chamber year under our new constitution, and the completion also of nine months of strenuous effort by the various committees of the chamber, the effect of which was greatly enhanced by the splendid cooperation afforded by The Washington Post.

The chamber desires to express its cordial appreciation of the aid which you have extended in keeping prominently in the minds of District citizens the important plans and projects with which our committees have been occupied and which mean so much in the proper advancement of Washington's civic and business interests. All constructive work accomplished during this period has been due in large measure to the publicity given to the work of the chamber and the cooperation afforded by The Washington Post.

The chamber intends, during the year just starting, to exert itself even more effectively for the advancement of the objects to which it is committed, and in this endeavor I bespeak your continued aid and sympathy.

CHAS. W. DARR,
President, Washington Chamber of Commerce.

What Would Happen if Congress and the League of Nations Should Disagree as to Identity of an Aggressor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Here is the freedom of the seas problem in a nutshell. It is taken from a letter to the New York World:

"You say that 'the United States could not and would not insist upon trading with a country which had violated the Kellogg pact.' That is very true, but who is to decide as to the fact of transgression? The League of Nations would render a decision and the Congress of the United States would render a decision. It is far from unlikely that the decisions would differ, and an exceedingly complicated situation would result. We should either have to permit our Congress to be dictated to by the league (something this country will never endure) or else stand on our rights as a neutral and incur the enmity of the nations in the league. Thus war with England again becomes thinkable."

District Conditions Summarized by Lincoln's Famous Phrase.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Onlooker" quotes the words of Lorenzo Dow, "You'll be damned if you do, you'll be damned if you don't," which he says applies to our Commissioners, District Attorney, Police Department and homicide squad. I think from the slant of conditions at the present time in these branches of the government that the words of Abraham Lincoln can also be applied: "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

WATCHFUL.

GARAGES FOR TRAINS.

It may not be long before the railroads of the country will begin to use the roadside garage and repair shop for repairs to their equipment, according to the Wall Street Journal. A start in this direction was made last week when the Katy Flyer, the M-K-T's crack train, had a broken piston valve on the engine near Temple, Tex. The engineer coasted until he came to a garage, stopped his train, had the valve repaired at a cost of 75 cents, and pulled out 30 minutes late.

Sons of Noted Men Get High Official Posts

Mr. James R. Garfield Again Takes Place in U. S. Service.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE theory that the genius of men of achievement descends to their daughters rather than to their sons is not always borne out by fact. True, only two Presidents of the United States, John Adams and William Henry Harrison, ever had a descendant in the President's chair. But the sons of Presidents have in many instances attained distinction—a fact to which attention is called by the naming of Mr. James R. Garfield, of Cleveland, as chairman of the President's Commission on Conservation and the Management of Public Domains, just at the time that young "Teddy" Roosevelt is taking up his new duties as Governor of Porto Rico.

Abraham Lincoln's son, Mr. Robert Todd Lincoln, was Secretary of War in two administrations, Garfield's and Arthur's, and later went to Great Britain as minister, holding a distinguished position in Washington after his retirement from public life. Col. Roosevelt, it will be remembered, held the post of Assistant Secretary of the Navy, which has been more or less hereditary in the Roosevelt family since his distinguished father filled it long before he became President.

Although Mr. James R. Garfield, one-time Secretary of the Interior, has been most in the public eye, all three of the sons of President Garfield are men of distinction in their own lines.

Dr. Harry Augustus Garfield is president of Williams College and his was the inspiration back of the organization of the Institute of Politics, which has become perhaps the most important forum for public discussion in the United States. Mr. Abram Garfield, the youngest of the three, is one of the country's best-known architects. Mr. and Mrs. Abram Garfield, by the way, are now visiting in Washington, with their daughter, Miss Polly Garfield, and Miss Elizabeth Fisher. They are motoring to Charlottesville, Va., and White Sulphur Springs from their home in Cleveland and are at the Mayflower for a few days.

Mr. James R. Garfield was identified with President Roosevelt's conservation movement and the new group, which he will direct will be interested in conservation of the Nation's water supply, oil and mineral lands, Indian lands and forests.

President Hoover seems to have a flair for choosing the sons of distinguished men for key positions for which they are well fitted by reason of their own achievements. Not only has he commandered Mr. Garfield and Col. Roosevelt for public service, but he chose Mr. Charles Evans Hughes, jr., son of the former Secretary of State, for the important post of Solicitor General.

Mrs. Dunn is State regent for North Carolina of the Wakefield National Memorial Association, of which Mrs. Rust is the head. At the fete, which was attended by 400 guests, Gov. Byrd made an address commending the move to restore Wakefield, birthplace of George Washington. A brief talk also was made by Mrs. Albert Moore Waddell, State president of the Colonial Dames of North Carolina.

Two Services To Broadcast Games Today

Football contests will be the major offerings of broadcasting stations this afternoon. The Army-Harvard game is scheduled to go on the air over a National Broadcasting Company network, including WRC, at 1:45 o'clock, with WMAL going on the air a quarter of an hour later to describe the University of Pennsylvania and University of California game, from Philadelphia.

WRC's daytime program will also include talks by a Cabinet member, a senator and a Congresswoman. Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture, will talk for a half hour at 5 o'clock from Ames, Iowa. Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, and Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, will be speakers in the National Farm and Home Hour at 1 o'clock from the studios of WRC. The Imperial Male Quartet and Harry Warner, humorist, will also be heard.

One movement from Ernest Bloch's prize-winning choral symphony, "America," a composition which was featured by nearly all the larger American symphony orchestras last season, will be heard on the General Electric program under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, which will be broadcast through a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Company, with WRC, at 9 o'clock.

Other selections are "Jubilee Overture" (Weber), "Carnival Overture" (Dvorak), "The Trout" (Schubert), "Au Cabaret" (Massenet), "Humoresque" (Tschaikowsky), overture to "The Bartered Bride" (Smetana), "Wine, Woman and Song" (Strauss), "Fete-Dieu a Seville" (Albeniz) and "Sparks" (Moszkowski).

Incidents in the life of Ludwig Beethoven, supplemented with musical interpolation, will be heard in the program at 8 o'clock from WRC. Beethoven, one of music's greatest figures, was as dynamic a personality as he was a brilliant composer.

Bernice Taylor, soprano, and Fred Waldner, tenor, will be the featured artists in Laundryland Lyrics at 8:30 o'clock.

Ludwig Laurier has made the following choice of numbers for the Slumber Hour at 11:15 o'clock:

Overture to "Merry Wives of Windsor" (Nicolai), selection from "La Fille de Mme. Angot" (Lecocq), "Laurendeau," "Eternelle Ivresse" (Ganne), "Spanish Serenade" (Friml), "The Nile" (Leroux) and "For Thee" (Vannah).

"L'Aiglon," Edmond Rostand's six-act romantic tragedy on the life of the Duke of Reichstadt, son of Napoleon I, and the Archduchess Maria Louisa of Austria, will be presented by the Radio Guild at 10 o'clock tonight by WJZ.

Dr. Henry Hadley, heard during the Gulbransen hour, has arranged the following program for 9:30 o'clock from WMAL.

"March of the Dwarfs," Grieg; "Scherzo," Mendelssohn; "Pierrette," Hadley; "Allegretto from symphony No. 8," Beethoven, and a waltz from "Sleeping Beauty," Tschaikowsky.

Occupying the high spot of the Paramount public radio hour at 10 o'clock will be a dramatic presentation of a scene from "The Return of Sherlock Holmes," featuring Clive Brooks. "Cosmopolite," the news man, will take the radio audience behind the scenes and relate how outstanding news events of the day are brought to the screen. David Mendoza and his orchestra will play a number of selections, and Paul Ash and his players will also be heard in Ash favorites. The Paramount Four and Anne Dorothy Boughman, soprano, and Veronica Wiggins, contralto, will also be heard.

A program of dance music will close WMAL's broadcast.

Walter T. Holt will present a program of mandolin and guitar numbers from WOL at 6:10 o'clock, followed by dinner music and the Silver String Revelers.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

OCTOBER 19.

"LIBRA."

IF October 19 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2:15 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Irritable and unhappy associations may spoil your happiness on this date. A drop of sense will do you more good than a deluge of words to make things right. Use caution in all your sports, as dangers are augured for this period. Benefit through elderly people or relatives.

Children born on this October 19 will have analytical minds and will be reliable and competent. They will be very observant, will learn quickly and will retain their knowledge. They will have considerable natural ability.

You are very ambitious, very courageous and have an abundance of self-confidence. Your talents and abilities will carry you far, but they are limited. Your ambitions may urge you into fields of endeavor for which you are entirely unfitted, and failures will ensue. You must study your limitations as well as your qualifications and remain in your own ken. In creative work you would be a "wash-out." In reproductive work you should excel. You could make an excellent supervisor, but you are unfitted to become a manager. You were made to be one of the performers on life's great arena.

You are a friendly, sociable being. Conviviality makes your life worth living, and will aid materially toward its longevity. You are not a natural student, but you possess a "natural understanding," which you do not obtain from books or study. You easily acquire and absorb knowledge through observation and travel. You are rather lucky in money matters and will make and receive some from unthought-of sources. You are too good a spender to be called thrifty. You are too generous to be called stingy.

You are not inclined to worry and are always hoping for the best. Your nature is not a sensitive one, and you do not have to be handled with gloves.

Successful people born October 19:

John H. Finley, educator.

Herman A. Metz, former comptroller of New York.

Howard Burhans Besemer, surgeon.

Fannie Hurst, author.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER, of Kansas, plans to develop WIBW, his broadcasting station at Topeka, Kans., into one of the most important in the United States and the foremost of its kind in the Middle West. Neither effort nor expense will be spared, and Senator Capper, a man of many interests, will give his personal attention to the new undertaking.

Although a little late in getting into the game, the senator sees vast future possibilities in radio, and the scope of his enterprise will be limited only by what additional broadcasting facilities he may be able to secure from the Federal Radio Commission. Station WIBU is at present using 1,000 watts on a frequency of 1,300 kilocycles.

The station will be the voice of the Capper publications and will be developed along agricultural lines, with the object of better serving the rural population in that section of the country.

Senator Capper was converted to radio through a speech he made during the campaign over station KFNF at Shenandoah, Iowa, owned by his old friend, Henry Field. Known far and wide, Mr. Field gave Senator Capper a great send-off and the speech went over big.

"Everywhere I went after that, it seemed someone would say to me, 'Oh yes, I heard your talk over Henry Field's station,'" the Senator said at the Capitol yesterday. "I believe I heard more from that one radio speech than anything else in the campaign."

PHILADELPHIA is to follow Chicago, Cleveland and other cities in the installation of a short wave transmitter for police work. With Maj. Pratt engrossed in the question of whether trolley cars should travel faster than 8 miles an hour across bridges, and the police department busy with its alibi on past performances, it is probably too much to expect that any police officials would have their minds upon the possibility of utilizing short waves in Washington to catch burglars.

A RECENT episode in the Cub Reporter program, a Saturday night WJZ feature, was built around an apartment house fire. The proper effects for fire engine sounds were available but the sound of roaring, crackling flames had not been worked out. During a rehearsal, Miss Berry, who plays the part of the girl friend, let her script slip from her hand and in catching it, crumpled and rattled the paper. Raymond Knight, production man, came rushing from the monitoring booth.

"That's it," he said. "That's it. Crumple that paper again."

The sound through the microphone was said to have been identical with the noise of a fire eating its way through a building.

SO thoroughly scared are they, Variety declares in describing the experiences of the movie people before the microphone, that some come in like lions and go out like donkeys. An actress with whom hauteur was a life-long pose was so wholesomely frightened that is was 20 minutes before she calmed down enough to remember the pose.

Radio appearances affected some of them as follows: Charles Ray—took off his collar so he could breathe—choked and nervous but came through fairly well; Douglas Fairbanks, very nervous; Bessie Love, fluttered birdlike at start but steadied; Aileen Pringle, asphasia and shivers; Greta Nissen, so scared she, left 10 minutes before event, leaving press agent profane and helpless, and Gloria Swanson, steeled herself and got along okay for a while. Finally dropped manuscript and quit cold.

WORK'S BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

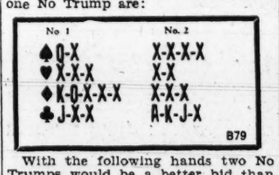
IN preceding articles we have covered major take-outs after partner has bid one No Trump and second hand passed. Today we will consider minor take-outs under such circumstances.

A call of two of a minor over partner's uncontested one No Trump announces a hand which may help the No Trump sufficiently to produce game, but will furnish that aid in the minor suit only. This bid is justified with a four-card minor headed by Ace-King-Jack, or Ace-Queen-Jack, possibly also by Ace-King-Ten-Nine; but as a rule it shows a five-card minor suit headed by any two of the three top honors.

When the minor two-bid is made over partner's one No Trump, it not only shows the strength in the suit that is bid as above set forth, but what is just as important, denies that the hand contains an Ace or King in any of the other three suits. With an Ace or King in addition to the minor strength named the No Trump should be jumped even if the hand contains a worthless singleton in some other suit.

With one Queen on the side, the minor two-bid should be made provided the count of the hand for high cards does not equal nine. With 9 for high cards the No Trump should be jumped. To make the latter point clear, it must be remembered that when jumping partner's No Trump, a five-card suit headed by one of the three top honors counts one, two if headed by two of these honors, and three if headed by all of them. Consequently, with some such holding as Ace-Queen and three other Clubs and the Queen of Diamonds, the hand really would count ten; but when determining whether to jump the No Trump or to bid a five-card minor, the count for the length of the suit is not reckoned, and therefore as the hand named would count only eight for high cards, it is better to bid it two Clubs. With a five-card suit headed by Ace-King and a side Queen, two No Trumps is justified by the high card strength.

Examples of hands which should bid two of a minor over partner's one No Trump are:



With the following hands two No Trumps would be a better bid than two of a minor:

Dare Interprets the Mode

. . . Our selection of a fall hat that most graciously frames the face.

FOUR years ago Agnes (pronounced An-yez, accent imperceptibly on the last half of the word) created a modern version of an African maiden's turban; a few seasons before some body or other revived the tricorner of the French revolution; last season Suzanne Talbot (with the able assistance of Dah-ray, the greatest living—ten cents admission, please—!) created the seductive bonnet that ended in long crystal hoops over both ears and this season I honestly think that Le Monnier's inspiration, which completely frames the face as to brim in the most delightfully flattering manner, is the outstanding fall millinery success.

As you know, there are always innumerable versions of a thing that is a proven success. The success is a basic design, you see, and upon it each one builds according to her fancy.

• • • • •

And illustrated for you today is our idea of Le Monnier's inspiration. Strangely enough, it is very similar in line to my new coiffure, which just nonchalantly evolved itself with the aid of reclining on pastel-tinted sheets (my own) while hospitalizing a few weeks ago. It's pretty different from the accepted coiffures of the day, which is all the more reason why every one, including myself, likes it so well.

• • • • •

So-o-o-o, Mamzelle brought back a hat like this from Paris. (She just came back to help us with the Clever Fingers Contest, because we needed her expert clever-finger help) and then sat down in a spare half-hour (ribald laughter from La Chic Secretaire) and made one for herself (it was slightly better looking than the one she brought me from Paris for several-teen dollars) out of a $1 hat-shape!

I got even with her, 'cause I wouldn't let her finish it until she helped me make an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make it!

Well, she did, so if you think you like the type of hat illustrated today, send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and get the illustrated leaflet, which will tell you exactly how to make it!

• • • • •

How do you like to be a Chic Witch, switch which we tell you how to be in this week's illustrated leaflet? (Excuse me if the typewriter lisps a little, won't you?)

Anyhow, our Chic Witch made herself a huge orange hat and, then turned it up in the front with a black velvet crescent moon, just to be different—and chic. And then she took her black fox fur and put a huge cat's head on it! Switch-switch, and a white yama-yama suit, she is going to be the belle of the ball, n'est-ce pas? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope—and hurry.

A lovely ensemble seen on the "Shanz-ee-lee-say" (we hope) was "raisin" crepe wool, with a frock having set-in pleats giving a distinct flare to the bottom of the skirt, a wide fichu of white georgette cuffs. The coat was heavier wool of the same shade, with a collar of brown fox reaching to the waist, and was there terminated by two small brown fur flowers backed on suede. And the sleeve of the coat had a wide cuff below a triangular piece set in at the elbow. Oh!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ANEMIA AND LIVER.

A FEW years ago liver as an article of diet was recommended as the treatment for pernicious anemia. As the result of several years' extensive experience certain facts seem to be established. One is that liver is a specific cure for pernicious anemia in much the sense that insulin is a specific cure for diabetes. A person with pernicious anemia will never die from that disorder if he will continue taking liver in proper doses daily.

So far as there has been time to judge this seems to be true. However, we must remember that pernicious anemia has been known to relapse after an intermittence lasting many years. In one instance this interval is said to have been 21 years. Therefore it is much too early to decide the point of ultimate curability of pernicious anemia by the liver treatment or any other. This much seems established. The liver diet or some other method of taking liver must be kept up for years after all symptoms of pernicious anemia have disappeared. The continuance of the treatment after the "cure" is important just as is the case with tuberculosis.

The trend of opinion now is that pernicious anemia is a deficiency disease and that it is not due to atrophy of the glands of the stomach or lack of gastric juice or to infection in the intestinal tract or to any other intestinal disorder.

The digestive symptoms so frequently found in pernicious anemia are effects of the disease and not the cause. The theory is that liver and certain other organs supply a specific iron rich in something which the body needs and which is deficient in pernicious anemia. There are two practical difficulties in the daily carrying out of the liver treatment over a term of years. Drs. Castle and Bowie say the cost is considerable.

At present prices the very good quality of liver extract on the market costs about 85 cents for the daily dose. At present prices of calf liver the cost to the present patient for his daily portion is about 40 cents. A daily portion of beef liver costs 10 to 15 cents. The other objection is the sameness of flavor. To supply an alternative Drs Castle and Bowie give a method of making a palatable liver extract in the kitchen.

This method will be given in tomorrow's article in this column. Another conclusion at which physicians appear to have arrived is that liver is effective in curing secondary anemias and chlorosis. And still another is that liver should not be fed to babies. If a child under 2 years of age becomes pale, his anemia can be overcome by other effective methods.

WEIGHT BEFORE AND AFTER.

P. H. S. writes: May I rise from the multitude long enough to tell you that you are all wet?

In your reply to Miss N. B. you state that the weight of a person after eating is equal to the weight before eating plus the weight of the food eaten. In all the experiments I have conducted along this line, with theory and scientific equipment to aid me, I have always met with the same result, i. e., the weight of a person is equal to his weight before eating plus from one-third to three-fourths the weight of the food consumed, depending on the type of food eaten. The theory is that in eating a degree of energy necessary to consumption is expended, with the resultant loss of weight.

REPLY.

You must have a hard time digesting your food if doing so uses up so much material. Have your fire box fixed. Change your dampers.

Just as the baby specialists finish teaching mothers to weigh their babies before and after eating you arise and ditch them.

WASTE THE ONLY EFFECT.

M. M. M. writes: 1. I have heard from several people that Epsom salts used in the bath is good for reducing. Is this true? 2. Is it harmful?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. It is wasteful, but not harmful otherwise.

Mrs. A. P. S. writes: 1. Is orange juice bad for prickly heat?

2. What are the symptoms of high blood pressure?

3. What does a pumping vein in the left wrist indicate? It is like a steady beat all the time.

4. Will diet help varicose veins?

REPLY.

1. It is not.

2. The symptoms vary. Among them are disturbed sleep, headaches, dizziness, kidney, heart and eye trouble.

3. My guess is that either you have discovered your radial artery or an artery which runs to the thumb. You have had this artery all your life. Everybody does.

4. No.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

On Thirty-Five a Week.

DO YOU live on $35 a week? Recently a young woman asked in this column whether her brother and the young school teacher to whom he is engaged, could hope to marry and find happiness on his present income of $35 a week. Being naturally pessimistic on the subject of poverty and love, we expressed doubt of the outcome—and asked for help from the faithful readers. We have received dozens of letters from couples who are not only living themselves on $35 a week, but raising families—on that sum. One father actually rebukes the stupidity that questions the possibility. Perhaps it's stupidity. And perhaps it's stupidity that causes so many couples, who start out on $35 a week, to end up in a few years in debt, and borrowing from family and friends. Perhaps they are in debt only because they were stupid about administering their estate. Certainly any couple who do not make ample provisions for saving, and for illness, and other unforeseen emergencies, are taking their peace of mind. However, Mr. J. says we are just too stupid for words:

"My wife has just handed me your article, 'Can Love Live on Thirty-five a Week?' And as she rarely asks favors I am acceding to her request and writing to say that we are not only living on $35 a week, but raising a fine, intelligent family on that sum. How can you be so stupid as to ask such a question? And why discourage young people from marrying by asking such questions?

"We are living on $35 a week.

"Have a boy 18 years old that has gone two years to high school and a little girl eight years old going to school. Our table is set with the best, our clothes are of the best, but we do not follow the styles, we buy when needed.

"We are paying for a home that is worth $6,000. And nobody gives us a thing, and also your readers can take notice—the Mrs. does not go out and work. We have no car to keep us poor. When we want to go, I can always find some one who is mighty glad to take us, as he needs the money. Also we do not try to spend our winters in Florida, because John D. Rockefeller can spend his there.

"Thanks for the courtesy.

TODAY'S WOMEN

ONE of the most popular writers of modern-day America, Fannie Hurst, was born this day, 1889, in St. Louis. She was educated at Washington University and at Columbia. Miss Hurst has been a prolific contributor to the magazines and her readers number millions.

Her works include "Just Around the Corner," "Every Soul Hath Its Song," "Gaslight Sonatas," "Humoresque," "Star Dust," "The Vertical City" and "Lummox."

"Humoresque" was produced as a play and a moving picture in 1923, and her other plays include "Land of the Free" and "Back Pay."

In searching for the material which gives such striking realism to her stories, Miss Hurst has worked in department stores, waited on table and gone across the Atlantic in steerage. In addition to writing, she has lectured extensively.

Amanda T. Jones, writer of popular Civil War songs and inventor, was born this day, 1835. Her patents cover inventions of several vacuum preserving processes and of a series of valves applicable to oil, air, steam and gas.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk

HOW does a "freshman" feel upon entering high school? This question is answered by a reader in the following letter:

"Dear Uncle Ray: I would like to tell you how I felt when I first entered high school—the school that I have to inhabit for the future four years. When I entered this school I looked at its strange walls, with pictures not at all familiar. I wandered indoors and out, lost in this gigantic building as it seemed to me.

"Finally I found my way to the auditorium, where I was told what room to go to. After asking many seniors and getting lost a couple of times, I found my way to the proper room, where I was given a 'first aid to the freshman' book. Then our senior guides showed us the building.

"Best of all, I like the gym. I am very fond of sports and inquired about the different games played in the building.

"The next day we were given our programs and were shown what rooms to go to. This was a very unpleasant day for me, as I was 'razzed' by all sophomores.

"Now, I am familiar with my school and very proud of it. Respectfully yours, "ELEANOR SPRINGER."

Of course, other pupils have different adventures upon first entering high school, but I think that there are few high school freshmen who do not feel "lost" the first day or two.

The sophomores usually feel very superior. They happen to be, on the average, a year older—and they "look down" on the newcomers. But when they get to be juniors or seniors they are likely to be more kind.

After all, isn't life very much like a series of freshman adventures? We try new things and they are hard at first, but in time we master them. Then we are ready for something else.

My class at high school adpoted this motto: "We finish but to begin." I like the words of that motto; they are filled with the spirit of new adventure. The world we are living in and the people we are living with have many surprises for us. Sometimes these surprises are happy, sometimes they are otherwise. Yet if we have firm minds we can meet any adventure, be it pleasant or unpleasant, and go on to the next beginning.

60 Vita-minutes to the morning hour

At no other time of day are readers so alert, so active, so responsive to buying suggestions.

It's morning . . . the beginning of another day. We are refreshed . . . awake to new activities, new opportunities. At no other time are our minds so keen . . . or so ready to act upon our decisions. Authorities state that 70 per cent of the world's activities take place in four short morning hours.

This important energy-peak makes morning hours more effective than any of the twenty-four. It gives each one a plus value equal to many minutes of afternoon or evening time. A value that's recognized in schools and universities . . . in business offices everywhere . . . and by shrewd advertisers.

Thus, in the Washington Morning Post, advertising dollars are concentrated on a wide-awake, responsive market. They answer the day's buying questions at the beginning of a new day . . . at the time when buying decisions are made. They create immediate sales.

It's an extremely profitable market, too, for any advertiser. The Post reaches thousands of Washington families every morning — the better homes in all residential sections of Washington and its suburbs — a definite and powerful family audience.

And, in addition, Post selling power extends its long-standing buying influence to strategic neighboring towns and cities as well. Another plus-value!

GUNMEN NET $60,000 AND SHOOT WAY OUT

Two Wounded When Indiana Gang Loots Bank and Flees, Firing.

BURGLAR ALARM BALKED

Peru, Ind., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Bank bandits today robbed the First National Bank of Peru of $45,000 in cash and $15,000 in securities, slightly wounded a policeman and a bystander and dashed out of town without a shot having been fired at them.

Six or seven men comprised the gang. Four of them entered the bank, forced fifteen employes and customers to lie down, swept up all money in sight, made a clerk open the safe, where more currency was obtained, and forestalled the police in answering a burglar alarm.

Leaving the institution the men rushed to their automobile, guns in each hand—excepting the man holding the money—shot into the gathering crowd and speeded out of town. They fired several shots in the air as they drove toward the city limits.

Policeman John Devinie was shot through a foot as he approached the bank when the bandits were making their getaway. H. L. Howenstein, of Michigan City, Ind., suffered a broken leg when struck by a bullet.

Kendrick Kenny, assistant cashier, stepped on a burglar alarm to call the police, just before he was forced to lie down with other employes and customers. When police headquarters called by telephone to inquire as to the alarm, the bandits thrust a fire-arm against the body of Miss Martha Endicott and compelled her to advise the department that nothing was wrong in the bank.

The men drove away from Peru in the direction of Indianapolis or Logansport. County and city authorities gave chase but lost all trace when they reached the branch in the road. An airplane was pressed into service, but returned without information after searching roads going to Rochester, Mentone and Culver.

U.S. BOARDS DISCUSS MALL TRAFFIC PLAN

Future Problems in Triangle Hold Attention of Fine Arts and Park Groups.

FACILITIES ARE MEAGER

The traffic problems that will arise when 20,000 Federal employes are concentrated within the Mall came up for discussion yesterday at the joint meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission.

The present transportation and parking facilities for the area are entirely inadequate for needs that will exist when the Government's public building program for the Triangle is completed, it was explained. To prepare for the situation, the two commissions will undertake a thorough study of all problems.

This will involve the number of street cars and buses that will be necessary to handle the crowds, parking space for private vehicles, and the manner in which the various streets extend beyond the Avenue into the Mall.

Street Extension Proposed.

Charles W. Eliot, 2d, city planner, submitted some plans for the extension of Twelfth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets across the Mall at the meeting yesterday, showing their relation to the roadways that will run up the Mall from the Monument to the Capital.

The Planning Commission also expects to confer with officials of the Standard Oil Co. in an effort to have the company erect a building between Second and Third streets on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue that will conform with the Federal buildings on the south side.

The Government does not own the property upon which the oil company proposes to erect a new structure, the present plans for which are out of harmony with that monumental architecture that will be the keynote of the buildings in the Mall and the municipal center.

Masonic Memorial Changed.

Harvey W. Corbett, architect for the proposed Masonic Memorial at Temple Heights, appeared before the commissions during the morning to explain the plans. He pointed out that he had eliminated the similarity to the Lincoln Memorial to which the members of the planning commission had objected.

The proposed bridge across the Washington channel at the exit from Hains Point was discussed. This bridge, it is said, would eliminate much of the traffic congestion that occurs as the automobiles cross under the railroad track at that point. No definite action was taken though. Drawings of the Mount Vernon Highway and the parkway from Fort Washington were displayed at the meeting.

The matter of locating the memorial to Oscar Strauss, former Secretary of Commerce, was brought up at the meeting, but no site was selected.

FUTURE QUEEN OF ITALY

The betrothal of Princess Marie Jose of Belgium to Crown Prince Humbert of Italy will be announced officially by the Belgian court next week. The wedding will take place in Rome early in January. These arrangements were made during King Albert's recent visit to Rome.

High Court Condemns Six Mexicans to Death

Mexico City, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The Supreme Court today confirmed the death sentences of six bandits who held up and robbed a Mexico City-Laredo train in 1921, killing several members of the military escort.

Jose Gonzalez Cantu, leader, and seven members of the band were captured soon after the hold-up and put in jail. The case has been in the courts ever since and dragged so long that two of the prisoners died.

Counsel for the defense have announced that they will seek presidential clemency.

Russian Plane Returns; Strikes Heavy Weather

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, returned to Pearson Field, Vancouver, Wash., today, and landed after encountering heavy weather south of Portland.

The Russian fliers indicated that they hoped to resume their interrupted flight from Seattle, Wash., to Oakland, Calif., within two or three hours. A few minutes after the landing at 12:25 p. m., Pearson Field mechanics started draining the oil from the left motor of the ship. It was believed that difficulty with the oil line may have entered into the decision of the fliers to turn back.

Youth Goes to Chair On Robbery Charge

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Seen as the beginning of a drastic campaign to stamp out a wave of robberies here, which has cost several lives, the death penalty was imposed today by District Judge Saul Yager upon Ted Cole, Tulsa youth, when Cole pleaded guilty to charges of robbery with firearms in connection with a hold-up of a bottling works August 20. No shots were fired in the robbery.

EARLY RIVER DAYS SEEN AGAIN ON OHIO

Colorful Array of Craft Steams Up and Down Stream in Pageant.

THOUSANDS LINE BANKS

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Reminiscent of the days when steamboating was in its heyday on the Ohio River, once the chief traffic artery between Pittsburgh and the West, a colorful array of river craft today steamed down to Emsworth Dam and back to the city in a pageant such as has not been seen here in a score of years.

Packets, tugs and towboats churned the waters of the Ohio while shrill sirens, blatant calliopes and bands made the surrounding hills ring. More than a score of boats were lined up behind the Cincinnati, flagship of the flotilla, as they steamed over the 6-mile course.

Thousands of persons lined the banks of the stream and boulevards winding upward from the river were jammed with automobiles, presenting traffic problems that required the attention of the greater part of the city's traffic squad. A carnival spirit was evidenced throughout, and all the glamour and romance of early steamboat days seemed to have witnessed a revival.

The pageant marked the first of several celebrations to be held the length of the river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill., in commemoration of completion of the Ohio River canalization, a $100,000,000 project. From Pittsburgh three boats will set out tomorrow for Cincinnati and Louisville, where President Hoover will be the principal speaker at a continuation of the festivities. The craft will carry Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, business and industrial leaders, and Pittsburgh city and county officials.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The Ohio river was slowly rising in its lower reaches today as the water released from above reached the section where half a dozen or more steamboats had been stranded since late Wednesday night.

The Mississippi, Government boat designated as President Hoover's headquarters during the coming celebration of the canalization of the river, still was tied up at Mount Vernon, Ind., near Evansville, late today, but was expected to be able to proceed up the river during the night or early morning.

Revival at Full Gospel Tabernacle.

A series of revival services will open tomorrow at the Full Gospel Tabernacle under the direction of Evangelist J. H. Bostrom, of Chicago. Services will be held every evening at 7:45 o'clock, except Saturdays, and at 11 o'clock and 7:30 o'clock on Sundays.

Blackmer Fine Order Is Signed

Attorney Notes Appeal as Siddons Puts Pen to $60,000 Edict.

A formal court order imposing $60,000 fines on Harry M. Blackmer, millionaire oil man now living in Paris, for contempt of court in failing to answer subpenas to appear as a witness in the Fall-Sinclair oil trials, was signed yesterday by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

George Gordon Battle, of New York City, counsel for Blackmer noted an appeal. Justice Siddons ordered a $500 bond posted for costs and directed the United States marshal to continue to hold $100,000 of Blackmer's Liberty bonds in lieu of a supersedeas bond.

The fines were imposed several weeks ago, but formal order making the levy an actual record had been delayed. Blackmer was charged with contempt on two citations and in each Justice Siddons assessed a $30,000 fine. Blackmer's Liberty bonds, which the marshal holds, were seized under the act of Congress regulating service of subpenas in criminal cases on Americans residing abroad, the law specifying that if they fail to appear property valued at $100,000 may be seized.

Crime Prevention Topic.

Crime and its prevention are to be given special consideration by the public order committee of the Washington Board of Trade at the group's dinner-meeting in the Raleigh Hotel Monday night. Capital punishment, in particular, is to be discussed, it is announced.

Officers Indicted On Graft Counts

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Five policemen were indicted by a Federal grand jury here today for conspiracy, the indictments being based on charges that they received "protection graft" from a bootlegger.

The indictments were the outcome of accusations made by James A. Skillman, confessed liquor seller, who said that they extorted money from him.

The men named by the grand jury are David Gates, Owen Horseley, Michael Murphy and Ben Franklin, detectives, and Glenn Lennant, a patrolman.

Another angle of the investigation in the section of the city where Skillman operated came to light today with revelation that Mrs. Ollie Mae Gilmore, 46, had reported that she was kidnaped a week ago by two men and a woman, who, she told police, demanded to know what information she had about "bootlegging in Highland Park." After detaining her in an automobile for some time, she said, they discovered that a mistake in identity had been made and released her.

Sarah Bernhardt was injured when one of the carriage doors slammed and broke the glass. One of the pieces of glass cut her forehead and one of the splinters lodged in her eye. She was placed, under the care of an eye specialist in Berlin. She has canceled all her engagements.

Honus Wagner, of Pittsburgh, led the National League in hitting for the second year in succession with a mark of .349. Jack Chesbro, of New York, pitched 52 games this season, winning 40 and losing 11 and tying one. Waddell, of the Athletics, struck out 343 batters. Case Patten was the best pitcher for the Senators, winning 12, losing 23 and tying 3.

While rounding the curve at Fourth and T streets northeast a suburban street car overturned. One man was killed and 30 persons injured, four seriously. About 70 passengers were in the car when the accident happened. No cause has been determined.

20 UTILITY STOCKS HIT NEW LOW MARK

Bears Wreak Vengence in Confidence-Shaking Drive on Lists.

DEBACLE IS GENERAL

New York, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The bear party, aided by confidence-shaking upturn in brokers' loans, turned the tables on the bulls in decisive fashion in today's stock market, more than evening up the score after the hasty manner in which it was driven to cover in the last half hour of trading yesterday.

The utility shares again broke wide open, and the general list came tumbling down almost half as far. The utilities, as measured by the Standard Statistics-Associated Press price index of 20 leading issues of the group, reached the lowest level since late last July.

The index dropped 14.1 points to 293.8, approximately 60 points below the high record reached in September, but still about 100 points above the low of April. The index of 50 industrials dropped 6.3 points, and that of 20 rails, 1.2 points, but they failed to reach the low levels of October 4. The fact that the day's turnover totaled but 3,507,740 shares attested a rather startling lack of support.

Call Money Plentiful.

The brokers' loan figures were distinctly disappointing, although new financing was generally regarded as playing an important part in the upturn of $88,000,000. The prospect of any substantial reduction in loans in the near future was darkened by the fact that more than $200,000,000 in stock must be taken up early next week. The loan situation overshadowed the plentiful supply of call money, which renewed at 6 per cent and dropped to 5. Other conditions being normal, 5 per cent money would be emphatically bullish, but under the circumstances it was regarded as merely indicating a lack of demand.

There was little in the day's news to influence the market. Earnings of Hudson Motor for the third quarter were announced at $1.77 a share, as compared to $3.79 in the previous quarter, but this had been foreshadowed by developments in the motor industry generally. Other earnings statements appearing were generally favorable. The weekly trade and business reviews stated that business conditions remained stable and generally satisfactory, in contrast to the securities markets. Retail trade was reported in large volume, although further evidences of a slackening of activity in heavy industry were indicated.

The market opened lower, was inclined to rally for a time, and then fluctuated rather uncertainly until late in the session, when prices turned downward with a rush. Some three dozen issues reached new lows for the year, or since being admitted to trading on this market. While most of these issues were stocks of smaller companies, the list included United Corporation, United Gas Improvement and General Motors, down about 6, 4 and 2 points, respectively.

After an early drop of about 3 points, efforts were made to support United States Steel, and for a time it sold at a net gain of a fraction, but then it tumbled more than 7 points. Even Standard Oil of New Jersey, which received powerful support in the recent decline, dropped more than 4 points to 77½, and closed at 78.

Auburn Auto, A. M. Byers and Johns-Manville tumbled about 20 points each, and Federal Smelting 17 points. American & Foreign Power, Allied Chemical, American Water Works, American Telephone, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Corn Products, General Electric, Ludlum Steel, Public Service of New Jersey, Republic Steel, Sears-Roebuck, Standard Gas, United States Industrial Alcohol and Westinghouse Manufacturing lost from about 5 to 11 points.

Radio Hits New Low.

Montgomery Ward sold down about 9 points to 97½, a new low since it sold ex-rights. Crosley Radio broke nearly 14 points to a new low. Curtiss-Wright, Kolster Radio, Eaton Axle, International Combustion, Schubert Theater and Murray Corporation were other shares breaking to new lows

Adams Express, now practically inactive as interest centers on the split-up shares on the curb, jumped 58 points to 536, after having tumbled 149 points yesterday.

Leading foreign exchanges showed striking strength. Sterling cables moved up about ¼ cent more to another new peak for the year at $4.87 5-16, and French francs, German marks and Holland guilders reached new 1929 highs. This gave rise to reports that considerable stock market liquidation has been for foreign account.

Commodity markets were also reactionary. Wheat lost about a cent a bushel on bearish Kansas crop reports and weakness at Winnipeg, while corn sagged about as much in response to higher Argentine estimates. Cotton futures were depressed for a time, but rallied to close steady on trade buying and week-end covering.

BOND LISTS CLIMB WITH EASY MONEY

Government Securities Lead, With Rails Second and Utilities Third.

PHONES ALSO INCREASE

New York, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—United States Government securities, investment rails and numerous utilities presented a strong front in the bond market today and gains were widespread and liberal. Foreign obligations participated to a lesser extent in the upturn and industrials showed considerable strength.

Easier time money contributed to the improved sentiment. Thirty-day loans were quoted at 7¼ per cent, while the rates on all other maturities were 7½ to 7¾ per cent.

Treasury certificates developed outstanding buoyancy. The 4¼s were up more than 18-32, the 3¾ advanced 19-32 and the 4s gained 10-32. Liberty 3½s improved about ⅜, and the first and fourth 4½s showed smaller rises.

Rails Climb 2 Points.

Advances of 1 to 2 points were fairly common in the rails. Loans advancing to that extent included Central of Georgia 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio refunding 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s, Illinois Central refunding 4s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas Prior lien 5s, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 4s, Nickel Plate 5½s, Northern Pacific 4½s, Reading General 4½s, Southern Railway general 4s and Wabash first 5s. A long list scored gains of ½ to 1 point and a few inactive rails showed maximum rises of 5.

Utilities were well taken. The new $32,000,000 issue of Southern Bell Telephone first 5s, offered this forenoon at 100, was admitted to trading on a when-issued basis and quickly commanded a 1 point premium. After a moderately active session the bond closed at 100⅝. Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s gained 2, Cincinnati Gas & Electric 4s soared 1¾, Utah Light & Traction 5s advanced 2 and West Penn Power 5s, series E, mounted 2¼.

Phone Bonds Stiffen.

Fractional improvement appeared in New York Telephone 6s, North American Edison 5½s, American Telephone Collateral 5s and Columbia Gas & Electric 5s. Louisville Gas & Electric 5s sold off 1½.

In the industrial group Armour Real Estate 4½s and Armour 5½s picked up fractions, while improvement to the extent of at least a point developed in Chile Copper 5s, Indiana Limestone 6s, International Match 5s, Lackawanna Steel 5s, Purity Bakery 5s, and Walworth first 6s.

Belgian Government issues were popular in the foreign section, the 8s rising nearly a point. South American bonds showed some irregularity but European municipal, industrial and utility issues were generally stronger on better inquiry.

ALERT TECH HIGH ELEVEN UPSETS EASTERN, 14-2; PENN-CALIFORNIA, ARMY-HARVARD CLASH TODAY

Contests Top Grid Card In East

Yale Host to Brown; Princeton Faces Test in Cornell.

Dartmouth Engages Columbia; Pitt to Meet Nebraska.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Football legions were massing today on the eastern front for the first death grapples of the 1929 season. From now on everything the title pretenders may do will be held against them.

On a dozen fields, power, craft and budding brilliance will range in nearly equal proportions tomorrow on both sides of the field. The first clash of Far West and Far Eastern might is due at Philadelphia. There is a fine balance of ancient and bitter rivalries and the final mopping of the pop-overs by the secondary elevens.

The Golden Bears of California, striking all the way across the continent into Pennsylvania's domain, head Saturday's attractions in the first far flung intersectional classic of the year. Chris Cagle, a team in himself, will head the Army march upon Harvard, one of the most powerful and promising of Eastern elevens. Discomfited Yale, already bruised by Georgia, plays host to the surprising Brown squad that nosed out Princeton.

Dartmouth Tackles Columbia.

Dartmouth's high-scoring aggregation from the Hanover hills, with fleet Al Marsters casting his shadow on before, tackles the rising might of Columbia in New York. Penn State rides into the Yankee Stadium again to duel with New York University's Violets, already wilted by the Fordham blast. Princeton faces another rugged afternoon with Gil Doble's growing power at Cornell.

The honor of defending the east in the remainder of the intersectional combats rests with Pittsburgh, Colgate, Navy, Syracuse, Boston College and Georgetown, with about even chances of success. Andy Kerr's new squad at Colgate makes its stand in the Midwest, squaring off against Indiana in the Maroon's second invasion of the big ten in three weeks. The first trip West was just a train ride, Wisconsin hailing down the Easterners in a final period rally.

Pitt Gets Chance In West.

Pittsburgh, boasting a grand eleven, will campaign against Nebraska's stonewall defenses at Lincoln with an exceptional chance to reap glory and recognition in one great outburst. Navy's busy afternoon will be provided by Duke, a strong eleven even though trounced by Pittsburgh. Syracuse entertains Johns Hopkins from Baltimore on the fringe of the Southern belt. Georgetown, once defeated, engages West Virginia Wesleyan, and Boston College meets Dayton.

The firing will be just as significant in other districts. Carnegie Tech is paired with an ancient rival in tough Washington and Jefferson. Bucknell meets Lafayette again, West Virginia tangles with Washington and Lee and Fordham's powerful array engages Holy Cross at the Polo Grounds.

For the home folks however, the biggest guns will be flarin at Cambridge where two foremost undefeated teams of the East clash.

Michell, Turf Trainer, Quits Post With Hertz

Chicago, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—B. S. Michell, one of the most widely known trainers of thoroughbred horses in the country, has severed his connection with the racing stable of John D. Hertz.

Michell took charge of the Hertz Stable in 1927, and within a few weeks prepared Anita Peabody to win the $100,000 futurity at Belmont. He followed this accomplishment with victories with Reigh Count in the Kentucky Derby, Saratoga Cup and Jockey Club Gold Cup races, which gave Reigh Count the American championship.

He indicated he would purchase a farm in California and breed and race his own thoroughbreds.

OLD HARVARD NO LONGER MEEK

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18.—The rough, robust, meat-eating Harvard football team, which has assumed the responsibility of living down the implications of the celebrated Princeton affair, will meet the West Point Cadets in Harvard's enlarged stadium Saturday afternoon. Although the Army was no party to the regrettable Princeton matter, it seems likely that the young men from West Point will have to survive considerable wear and tear as the Harvard boys go about their counter-propaganda.

You may remember the implications of the Princeton affair. They were that the Harvard chaps liked to play king's-X football or a glorified version of squat-tag. Ever since then, Harvard football has been growing more rugged and, if all that one hears about the abrupt nature of the Harvard play at the present time is true, the boys from the Military Academy will be asked to stand up under a furious demonstration of manly vigor this time, to the end that these old implications may be finally and convincingly refuted.

Inasmuch as the Army lads never cast any aspersion upon the vigor of Harvard's football, the Cadets, I imagine, would be content to waive the matter entirely and just play along in the usual manner, firmly, but without passion. However, the Harvard team has been a long time arriving at the present state of mind and body and it just happens to be the Army's misfortune to come along as its first major opponent in the season chosen as "Der Tag" up here.

Vigor Beyond Call of Duty Is Anticipated.

Everyone anticipates a show of vigor above and beyond the call of duty by all members of the Harvard team, but I hope this is not taken to suggest that the boys are planning any conduct beyond the code of lively but gentlemanly sport.

Still, the Cadets themselves never have been noted for their delicacy on the football field, and, having been warned of the spirit of the Harvard Team, they should be able to rise to the occasion. They practiced this afternoon on the pool table sward at the bottom of the Harvard Stadium, which has now been extended to seat about 58,000 people. After their exercise and some minor surgery by Frank Wandle, their trainer, in the dressing room, they were loaded into omnibuses and shipped back to the Belmont Springs Country Club to spend the night. The Harvard Team worked out after the Cadets had left, but, consistent with the effort to deemphasize football here, the players were not sequestered for the evening, and some of them may be dissipating at the illicit bookstores this evening for all the authorities know.

More Than 54,000 Expected To See Game.

The crowd will be the greatest ever assembled for a football game in New England except at the Yale Bowl, which seats about 80,000. The old Harvard Stadium, the first great football amphitheater in the East, held about 54,000, which was regarded as a large number in those days. It was a U-shaped arena, however, and the open end of the U came to be a reproach to the Athletic Association on occasions of great significance, such as tomorrow.

So, in the last year, the open end was filled in with a spider-legged steel structure, completing the elongated circle, and now the Harvard Stadium has seats and standing or leaning room for some 58,000, which will be occupied in full, if not more so, for the first time Saturday.

There is no noticeable warlike collegiate effervescence at Harvard this evening. Arnold Horween, the coach, who took charge of the team when the implications of the Princeton affair were exceedingly rife, was discovered playing billiards in the basement of the Athletic Association Building. He said he was quite calm about the football game, which was only a sporting event after all. No doubt he was, although just as he said this his cue wavered so violently that his partner asked: "Are you waving at somebody?"

Aces Harper and Douglas Lost to Harvard.

Two of the best men on the Harvard team, Wallace Harper, of Ottumwa, Iowa, the full back, and Jim Douglas, of New York, the left end, were mauled and bruised so badly in the New Hampshire game that they will not appear tomorrow. Harold Levin, a Boston young man previously employed as a tackle, has been withdrawn from the line-up owing to injuries, too, as the show of manliness may not be as violent as it might have been otherwise.

Joe Potter, 19-year-old senior from Milwaukee, is ordinarily ranked as the number 2 full back, but he be-

Navy Offered To Play Two Weeks Ago

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 18.—Navy is willing to waive all phases of eligibility and meet Army on the gridiron, December 6, Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison superintendent of the Naval Academy, let it be known today in a brief statement issued by him.

"I wrote Gen. Smith, of West, Point, two weeks ago," said the admiral, "and offered to play Army a postseason game without any eligibility restrictions, out with the understanding that acceptable eligibility be formulated for future games."

Other than this statement, Admiral Robison refrained from entering into details of the long pending controversy that brought about the breach between West Point and Annapolis following the grid game in 1927.

Hope to Enthuse Regiment.

It also became known today that the proposition made by Admiral Robison to Gen. Smith, had been withheld from the regiment of Midshipmen, local authorities believing that Army would come forward with a prompt and favorable reply, and it had been planned to impart the expected favorable information to the student body just before the Navy-Notre Dame game, the idea being the "dope" would pep up the players for that battle for which great preparations had been made.

It thus appears, therefore, that Navy, and not Army, took the initiative in hope that differences would be brought to a definite solution, and that Gen. Smith's telegram of yesterday was a belated reply to Admiral Robison's letter.

Navy People Not in Favor of Chicago.

With the prospect of a postseason engagement growing stronger, there is much speculation as to where the game would be staged. It is known that Navy people are not inclined to the suggestion of Soldiers Stadium, Chicago, for two reasons, namely, colder weather out there, and the longer journey it would entail and consequent break in academic routine. They feel that a site in the East would be decidedly more preferable, Baltimore Stadium and Philadelphia being mentioned in the reckoning.

165,000 See Football On Chicago Fields Today

Chicago, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—In the neighborhood of 165,000 football fans will witness the sport in Chicago tomorrow, taking their pick of three games. The Notre Dame-Wisconsin game at Soldier Field is expected to attract 100,000, while about 45,000 will watch Minnesota and Northwestern battle for a chance at the Big Ten title. Chicago's double-header bill with Ripon and Indiana Normal will draw about 20,000 customers.

G. U. Expects Strenuous Battle

W. Va. Wesleyans Out for Revenge Today at Stadium.

Strong Team Headed by Rodriguez a Triple Threat.

WITH an air of determination and defiance generated by desire to avenge last year's 34-7 defeat, the Bobcats of West Virginia Wesleyan from Buckhannon, W. Va., are ready to battle Coach Lou Little's Georgetown Eleven this afternoon at Griffith Stadium. The opening kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

The Bobcats, a pack of snarling, wild-eyed bobcats, if you please, would regard victory today ample balm not only for their loss here last season, but for three defeats already suffered this fall from West Virginia University, New York University, and St. Xavier College.

One of the teams of minor classification, Coach Cebe Ross' club sees in today's contest a chance for undying glory, which would be its reward for winning from one of the Eastern "big shots." Three times this season Wesleyan has gone down to defeat despite creditable performances, and while losing it has evidenced great potential strength.

Georgetown Not Holding Visitors Lightly.

Georgetown awaits the game with full knowledge of Wesleyan's power but does not expect, or, rather, is prepared to prevent an upset. Coach Little's Hilltoppers, though riddled by injuries, are on the upgrade after disappointing early season contests.

Due to injuries to three regular players, the Hilltop Team won't be able to present its strongest front. Ken Provincial and Bob Brennan, the varsity ends, and Johnny Hudak, veteran full back, are the trio who will be missed.

Mancell Gillis, a sophomore, will take Hudak's place, while "Shing" Wynkoop, a veteran formerly assigned to center, and either Hal Meenan, a reserve end, or Ben Schmid, heretofore a half back, will fill the wing positions. There is a possibility that Hudak will see action, however, but Coach Little won't permit him to go in unless his presence is absolutely necessary.

In the Wesleyan back field Capital fans will see one of the best "triple threats" in Eastern football ranks. He is "Careless Kelly" Rodriguez, a dashing, hard-playing youth of Irish and Spanish extraction. Against New York University Rodriguez played the best game of offensive and defensive football of any individual Gotham experts had witnessed up to that time this fall.

Wesleyan Backs a Unit for Two Seasons.

Rodriguez will be surrounded by players nearly as capable as he. Henry Miller, the quarter back and captain, and Forrest Bachtel, right half back, are stars in their own right, while Cliff Battles holds down the left half-back post in brilliant fashion. All four have played as a unit for two years.

Nats Sell Heidelbach And Land to York Club

Believing that his two Gadsden, Ala., recruits—Outfielder Doc Land and Pitcher H. L. Heidelbach—are too far away from being major leaguers that neither would be of any use to Manager Walter Johnson next season, President Clark Griffith yesterday sold both outright to the York Club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

G. W. Chances Poor At Dickinson Today

Only a vast improvement over its past performances will enable George Washington to escape its third successive defeat of the season today when it meets the Dickinson College eleven at Carlisle, Pa. Comparative records forecast a Dickinson triumph while not even the Colonials themselves anticipate anything but another reverse.

The material and the spirit at George Washington this fall is the least impressive in many years. The players seem content to take defeat. No degree of urging on the part of the coaches seems sufficient to arouse the G street lads.

Steeplechase Jockey Dead After Spill at Laurel Track

Special to the Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 18.—Riding at Laurel today, Benjamin Kleeger received injuries causing his death when his mount, Rollicking Princess, bolted the inside wing of the fourth fence in the 2-mile Warrenton Steeplechase.

Two other jockeys also were injured in the race. Jeffcott, riding Broomstaff, received lacerations on the face and a dislocated thumb when the horse went down at the tenth jump. Eddie Ball, on Raspberry, was bruised and shaken up in a fall at the eleventh fence.

Kleeger's chest was crushed and one lung punctured. He was immediately sent to the South Baltimore General Hospital here, where he died.

Kleeger, whoseh ome is said to be in Jamaica, Long Island, was well known among the racing fraternity. Once a rider on the flat, he took to the jumps when his weight disqualified him for the former events.

EUROPE SEES CARNERA AS CHAMPION

LONDON, Oct. 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight who smashed up his British opponent, Jack Stanley, in less than 2 minutes in Albert Hall last night, is being touted here today as the future heavyweight champion of the world. Not only that, but the English fans who saw him flatten Stanley say that Primo probably is the greatest fighter that ever lived.

Carnera is 6 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 280 pounds, has a reach of 85 inches, is 20½ inches around the neck, has a chest girth of 54 inches, biceps 18½ inches, forearm 16½ inches, thigh 30 inches and waist 41 inches. Jeff Dickson, who promoted last night's bout, now has matched Carnera to fight Young Stribling, the American heavyweight, in Paris on October 31.

Stribling arrived here otday and began training immediately. Dan Sullivan, manager of Charlie Smith, is prepared to bring the latter back from the United States to meet Carnera if the financial inducement is made worth while.

Fight Experts Enthused.

Jack Goodwin, well known trainer: "Carnera is the biggest and best developed man I've seen. He has a good knowledge of the game and his uppercuts are splendidly delivered. He's fast, and on last night's showing I wouldn't like to try to pick a man to beat him."

Referee Has Praise For Fighter.

Jimmy Wilde: "Carnera is exceptionally good for his size. He will create a stir among the big fellows in America."

Carnera hopes to go to America soon, not only to get some fights there, but to solve the present problem of sparring partners. He can't get any to stand up with him long enough to give him practice. He also wants to see his kid brother, who, although only sixteen, Carnera says, already is 6 feet 4 inches in height and weighs more than 210 pounds."

Taylor and Castro Fight Again November 15

In the other two ten-rounders, Dempsey matched Sid Terris, New York lightweight, with Honey Herrera, sensational Mexican puncher, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, New Orleans, another pair of lightweights.

Altogether, a dozen entries are expected, while eight canoes are expected to face the line in class B.

AMERICAN U. SEEKS 3D VICTORY

Eagles and Baltimore Clash; Change in Team Necessary.

SEEKING their third straight victory—a record in the annals of gridiron history—the American University Eagles today will play Baltimore University's Eleven at Mount Washington, Baltimore.

In Coach Nate Weinstock's team, the American Eleven faces its toughest foe to date, as the Baltimore players unquestionably are stronger than Shenandoah and George Washington, victims of American's two previous victories.

Olsen to Play at Half Back.

Either Forrest Diehl or Eric Freidheim will take the flank post and Diehl or "Reds" Olsen will get the call at the half back position, said Young. Diehl is certain to play, the coach stated.

Followers of the Eagles pin their hopes for victory on the offensive strength of the team. With Orville Targee, former Chillicothe (Ohio) star, and Jack LaFavre, Milton Crist and Diehl or Olsen in the back field, the American U. fans expect the Baltimore defense to receive as much work as it can handle.

Christner Punishes Schaaf in Boston Ring

Boston, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—K. O. Christner, 35-year-old Akron, Ohio, heavyweight, gave young Ernie Schaf, of Boston, a terrific ten-round beating here tonight in the feature event of the Boston Garden's all-heavyweight show. Christner weighed 197 pounds, 3 more than his rival.

Christner's heavy rights to the head and body hurt Schaaf and forced the young battler to hold frequently. Schaaf was unable to make any kind of progress until the fifth round, when he battered Christner with heavy left hooks to the head and followed with a two-fisted barrage to the body. This was Schaaf's only round.

In the sixth Christner gained revenge by staggering Schaaf with a heavy left to the jaw. The Boston youngster was reeling when Christner caught him with two more rights, but he managed to hold on till the bell.

8,000 Watch Defeat of Favorite

Kolker Blocks Punt in First Quarter, Runs 40 Yards.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

ANOTHER Knute Rockne has come to life.

That is a lofty distinction to tag to a high school football coach, but if you don't believe it, you might just as well keep the opinion to yourself, for it will do little good to try to convince some 8,000 high school football fans who yesterday witnessed the football product of Elmer P. Hardell.

For when such an array of veterans as Eastern High School presented yesterday in the high school football inaugural is so thoroughly and disastrously routed by a team of eleven heretofore unknown young men from Tech High School to the timely tune of 14-2, you may be sure that there is something behind it all.

And the answer can be found in only guess—"Hap" Hardell. It was an inexperienced team that bore the Maroon and Gray of McKinley Manual Training School on the gridiron yesterday, but inexperienced in reputation only. There wasn't a District high school fan who hadn't heard of McCullough, Oxley, Millar, Hayden, &c., but who ever heard of Nelson, Kolker, Reichman or Winston?

Untried Youngsters Upset Series Dope.

And yet, this same bunch of inexperienced, untried, and young players so decisively whipped a team of eleven men which had almost upset a far greater renown Tech Team last year that no question was left in the minds of the vast crowd as to the distinct superiority of the winning combination.

From the fourth minute of play, when Sid Kolker, right tackle, blocked Charley Millar's punt on Eastern's own 40-yard line and, not content with merely dropping on the ball, picked it up and broke away for the remaining distance to the Light Blue and White goal line, until the final whistle choked off the only Eastern threat when it seemed as if the Lincoln Parkers might yet score, there was being witnessed one of the biggest upsets ever recorded in high school competition in the Capital.

There was no phase of the game in which Eastern was not outclassed. Its running game was stopped, its kicker was outkicked, and its territory was in constant danger throughout. For fully three-fourths of the game the play was in Eastern territory and the closest it came to the Tech goal was when Miller kicked over the goal line to Goos, who came back 10 yards to put the ball on the Maroon and Gray 1-yard mark.

Automatic Safety Called On Attempted Punt.

It was then that Eastern gained its only marked, a puny two points, which were allowed when Nelson stepped out of bounds behind the end zone. Before he could get the ball away Referee Towers called it an automatic safety, which gave Eastern two points and saved a whitewash.

It is hard to pick the outstanding player for Tech. Probably the greatest glory should go to Kolker, who proved the hero of the game when not even slated to start as a regular. Whatever gave Hardell the inclination to start him is unknown, but it was a lucky "hunch."

For, with Eastern on its own 40-yard line, in the first few moments of the game, this young man broke through on a fourth down to block a punt, and then to the amazement of all, snatched the pigskin from the ground, broke through a small group of Eastern players, and ran 45 yards to the first touchdown of the year, vainly and cheerfully pursued by a wild pack of both Eastern and Tech players, respectively.

Benner Crosses Line On Two Passes.

Although expected to use an aerial attack, Tech stayed on the ground throughout the game until the clos-

DISPLAY EARNS LAUREL HANDICAP PURSE BY NECK

Iollan Beaten In Stretch Drive

Display Comes With Rush After Trailing Field.

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 18.—Walter J. Salmon's sturdy old campaigner, Display, finally earned a purse when he won the B. & O. Capitol Limited Handicap. This was a dash of a mile and a furlong and it was provided as a feature. It brought a field of six to the post and it furnished a stirring contest in which Display came from behind in the stretch run to wear Iollan down. A neck separated the pair and it was only in the final strides that Display got up.

In the early running, Wellet went to the front and opened up a commanding lead. At the half mile pole he was five lengths in front of Iollan with Display trailing along last of his field. Rounding the far turn, Schaefer sent Display up on the outside. He went particularly wide entering the home stretch and at the furlong pole charged on Iollan who had taken the lead from Wellet. The pair hooked up and fought it out and when the final test came Display proved the gamest. Searcher was third, beaten two lengths for the place and Wellet was a tiring fourth.

First Disqualification of Meet Recorded.

The first disqualification in Maryland this fall came with the running of the fourth race when the Montpelier Farm's Chatter Ann was disqualified for fouling Col. Crump. The interference came at the top of the home stretch where Workman brought Colonel Crump up on the inside. Just as he was forging to the front Chatter Anne swerved across in front of him and forced Workman to snatch his mount up.

Workman was prompt in registering a complaint of foul after weighing out and the patrol judge verified the Whitney rider's version of the matter and a ruling then came from the stewards disqualifying Chatter Anne. The change in the placing made Ping Coates, first, Colonel Crump second, and Bagsmasher third.

Ping Coates staged a great stretch drive race, when he came from behind to wear Chatter Anne down to win by a head. Chatter Anne was the one to make the pace. Bounding to the front, she drew away into a lead of a length and a half on the back stretch and she held command until the top of the home stretch, where Norma Jean moved up and passed her. Col. Crump was coming through next the rail at this stage and just as he was making his run, Chatter Anne bore over in front of him and Workman was forced to pull up, when he finally got clear. Col. Crump came again to finish third.

Red Tape Takes Opener By a Head.

Red Tape, a good looking colt by Light Brigade that races for Frederick Johnson was the winner of the first race when he outlasted E. R. Bradley's Bide a Wee to win by a head. Outrun in the early stages of the race Red Tape moved stoutly entering the home stretch and in the final furlong responded gamely to Sonny Workman's desperate drive. Chatterwood was third beaten a neck for the place. In the early running Nelson showed the way and he led until rounding the far turn where Cupboard caught and passed him. When put to a drive Cupboard weakened and tiring badly at the end finished fourth, beaten three lengths by Chatterwood.

There were nine started in the Warrenton Steeplechase and five finished the course. The winner turned up in H. W. Maxwell's Snifter who galloped home five lengths in front of E. R. Bradley's Bootland. Fair Moss was third. Broomstaff went to the front when the start came and opened up a lead of six lengths the first turn of the field.

Jockey Kleager Hurt in Crash Into Fence.

At the tenth fence, Broomstaff lost his rider and then became tangled in the bridal and fell. Bootland was racing in behind Broomstaff and in jumping the fallen horse was forced to pull the Bradley horse up. This enabled Snifter to go to the front and steal a lead of four or five lengths, which Bootland was unable to overcome. Rollicking Princess crashed through the fence at the fourth jump. Raspberry lost his rider at the eleventh jump and Rockdale lost his rider at the twelfth obstacle.

Kleeger, who had the mount on Rollicking Princess, was taken to the South Baltimore General Hospital. It was feared that he suffered a punctured lung as a result of his mount crashing through the wing.

Intrepid made a show of the opposition that he encountered in the mile and a quarter of the final event, in which there were eleven to sport silks. His victory was accomplished after he sped along in advance of his company the entire trip and at the end was just a length before Fire On, with third being landed by Confidential.

Latter, in near pursuit of the pace all the way, continued with good energy for the final test. CHATTERWOOD, losing much ground all the way, showed a splendid effort. Latter was racing stoutly and fencing strongly when he was unable to avoid BROOMSTAFF when he lay sprawled on the ground. After pulling up to practically a walk, he closed courageously when brought back into his stride. FAIR MOSS fought it out with good ability. ERRANT HAWK was never a factor. JIM'S QUEEN tired poorly. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNCHEN, $27.60, $11.80, $5.80; BRILLANTE, $7.00, $3.90; LASSA, $2.70.

SUNCHEN, taken under slight restraint when in a forward position, swung to the outside of the leaders when making his run, wore LASSA down gradually and was under stiff pressure at the end. BRILLANTE, in a forward position from the start, closed full ground and was wearing the winner down. LASSA, hard ridden all the way, held on well when collared. DONNATINA was racing strongly when forced to take up at the turn when LASSA bore over on her. MANAGER EVERS closed a lot of ground. CHARLEY J. S. tired under his weight.

CHATTER ANNE FINISHES SECOND, DISQUALIFIED.

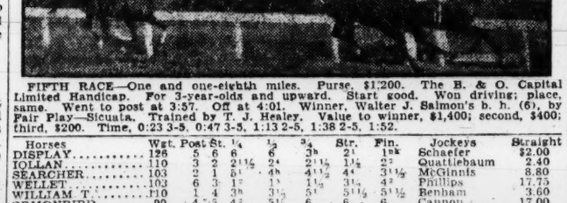
Two-dollar mutuels paid—PING COATES, $55.80, $27.10, $16.00; COLONEL CRUMP, $14.60, 38.60; BAG SMASHER, 38.40.

PING COATES, avoiding interference going to the first turn, raced within striking distance of the leaders, came with good courage for the final issue and in a game finish, was up in the final sixteenth. CHATTER ANNE, rated in front, shook off bold contention from NORMA JEAN. She crowded over on COLONEL CRUMP the last furlong and was disqualified. COLONEL CRUMP was racing cleanly when impeded by CHATTER ANNE at the final furlong pole. BAG SMASHER showed a good test. ULVERSTON, caught in tight quarters at the break, closed a big gap when clear.

DISPLAY DISPLAYS CLASS IN THE FEATURE.



FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. The B. & O. Capital Limited Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:57. Off at 4:01. Winner, Walter J. Salmon's b. h. (6), by Fair Play—Sicuta. Trained by T. J. Healey. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $400; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 2-5, 1:38 2-5, 1:51 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DISPLAY, $6.00, $4.60, $3.40; IOLLAN, $4.40, $3.30.

SEARCHER, $4.70.

DISPLAY, allowed to remain off the pace for the first six furlongs, circled his field with splendid speed, withstood a drive in game fashion and wore IOLLAN down to get up in the concluding strides. IOLLAN, sent into a contending position, moved to WELLET when ready to assume command approaching the stretch turn, was placed to punishment and held on grimly. SEARCHER closed stoutly and outstayed WELLET.

PRINCESS TINA OUTRANKS FIELD IN THE SIXTH.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. The Claiborn. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:34. PRINCESS TINA began rapidly, sprinted into a long lead while under steadying restraint and was in hand all during the last quarter mile. While BILLYCOCK worked his way up on the inside the last three furlongs and finishing strong, was up for second place in the closing strides. SANDY SHORE made his run leaving the back stretch and finished with good speed.

INTREPID LIVES UP TO NAME IN DAY'S FINALE.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls for all but Rock Candy. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:07. Winner, S. N. Friedel's ch. g. (8), by Whichone—Ilmanzanita. Trained by B. E. Chapman. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:42 2-5, 2:07.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INTREPID, $8.40, $5.00, $4.40; FIRE ON, $5.20, $4.20; CONFIDENTIAL, $4.20.

INTREPID took command at once, opened up a winning lead, was steadied along and had enough in reserve to withstand FIRE ON. Latter improved his position on the outside and closed gamely for the final drive. CONFIDENTIAL, well up all the way, was making up ground slowly at the end. ALITA ALLEN ran far out of contention, closed full of run. RING ON went well. BLACKBERRY tired.

NEAR-RIOT FOLLOWS DEVITT'S 12 TO 0 VICTORY

Wash. & Lee High Team Beaten

Police Protect Prep Team After Rough Game at Ballston.

Abramson Dashes 65 Yards for Final Touchdown.

DEVITT PREP GRIDMEN journied to Ballston yesterday afternoon to turn in a 12-to-0 victory over the Washington and Lee High School Eleven. The game was a rough one throughout, and county police were needed after the final whistle had sounded to prevent the partisan home fans from attacking members of the Devitt Team.

Washington and Lee put up a game fight against the Washington Team, being outweighed, but refusing to give up until the very end. The lone touchdowns of the game came in the first and final periods.

In the first quarter Devitt lost the ball on an intercepted forward pass until to regain it near the enemy goal on a Washington and Lee fumble. McLear then carried the ball over the final chalk mark.

Abramson Uncorks Run Of 65 Yards.

Washington and Lee then held the Prepmen in check until the final period, when Abramson suddenly broke through, and, on a fine open field run of 65 yards, eluded one would-be tackler after another until he finally grounded the ball behind the goal posts.

Costarring with Abramson for Devitt weer Shriber, Keefe, Bernard and Knott, while Mortimer, Chase, Connor, Young, Goodwin and Harrison all played well for the losers.

Michigan Boy Scores Lucky Win at Latonia

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—J. L. Pontiusi's 2-year-old Michigan Boy scored a lucky win and increased his earnings by $1,100 when he ran the 6 furlongs in 1:11 3-5, and was declared the victor in the Miami Valley Handicap, feature attraction of today's good card. Audley Farm's crack 2-year-old Gallant Knight suffered bad racing luck, but he took the place, while Tombereau, from the stable of S. Peabody, was awarded the short end of the purse. Three others started, but were always outrun.

T. Murray, who had the mount on Michigan Boy, took him into a forward position early in the running, but held his mount under restraint, coming into the heading of the stretch, where he saw an opening and took Michigan Boy through to gradually work his way up and win by a head. W. Crump, astride Gallant Knight, raced in second place practically all the way, and was forced to go wide on both turns. Straightened in the stretch Gallant Knight was closing resolutely at the finish and just failed to get up. Tombereau was used up setting the early pace under pressure.

Michigan Boy was held at $11.70 for $2 in the mutuels.

NAVY SHIFTS TEAM FOR DUKE

Changed Line-Ups to Take Field Today; Foes Respected.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 18.—Radical changes in the Navy lineup, due in part to weaknesses discovered and injuries resulting from the Notre Dame battle, were announced today by coaches for the Duke game tomorrow. Moret, Chapple, Steffanides and Swan are new faces for starters, and Art Spring will play quarter in place of Kohlas.

A light signal and punting drill marked the Middies' final workout for the game, which is expected to develop into a spectacular affair.

There are several familiar names in the Duke lineup, that is, veterans who contributed to the great game played by the Blue Devils against the Middies last season, when Navy barely won by a count of 6 to 0.

Jankowski Returns To Annapolis.

Notable among these are Jankowski, brilliant back, who played only in the latter stages of the game, because he had not entirely recovered from a siege of injuries; Buie, another back; Warren, at end; Rupp, center, and Davis, guard. Navy is holding in due measure of respect the invaders.

Lawrence Koepke, Navy captain and guard, will watch the game from the bench. He was not so good against Notre Dame, and moreover absorbed a good battering from which he has not entirely recovered. He has been replaced by Swan, and Chappel, one of the heaviest men of the squad, has taken Eddy's place on the other side of center. Castree, in the back field, who did some flashy playing last season, is making his first start of the season.

The probable lineup:

Annapolis.	Position.	Duke.
Moret	L. E.	Warren
Bowstrom	L. T.	Kistler
Chapple	L. G.	Thorne
Hughes	Center.	Rupp
Swan	R. G.	Davis
Bryan	R. T.	Carpenter
Steffanides	R. E.	Cole
Spring	Q. B.	Fosky
J. Bauer	L. H.	Buie
Castree	R. H.	Beaver
Clifton	F. B.	Jankowsky

Duke Eleven Hopeful Of Upsetting Middies

Special to The Washington Post.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 18.—Thirty-five Blue Devils, the whole Duke football squad, left tonight for Annapolis, Md., where Navy will be played tomorrow in the second intersectional game of the year for the Blue and White.

The football men and the cross-country team, which competes with the Middy runners tomorrow, filled two sleeping cars of the special train. A great crowd of student followers went along to cheer the Blue Devils on to victory. The team is in great shape and everybody is confident it has an even chance to beat the Middies.

The starting line-up likely will be:

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 12.—Misfortune is following in St. John's College football team. Head Coach M. Talbott Riggs revealed today that "Curly" Casassa, former Washington Prep School player, regular quarter back of the team, had broken his shoulder. Injured last Saturday in the Gallaudet game, it was thought that the hurt was minor. An X-ray shows a broken shoulder, which beans his loss for the rest of the season.

Casassa, who, in 1927, led Washington prep schools in scoring, was the leading light of the St. John's and last year. His first with the Orange and Black found him putting the needed punch in the team to direct a 46-to-0 win over Johns Hopkins University, traditional rivals. Earlier in the season "Okey" O'Connor, known as the "hard boy" of the team and regular tackle, was lost for the season through an ankle injury. And to top it, Vernon Novicki, best of the flanks, in practice dislocated his ankle.

With all these tough breaks in mind, the St. John's team left here at 1 o'clock this afternoon for New Brunswick, N. J., where the locals will tomorrow oppose the bigger and more experienced Rutgers eleven.

W. VA. READY FOR W. & L. BATTLE

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 18. With the departure of the West Virginia University football squad for Charleston this evening, it was clearly evident that the Mountaineers are a determined lot who have but one thought in their minds—"Beat Washington and Lee."

The West Virginians feel that the annual Wash-Lee battle will be the turning point in the fortunes of this year's team, and they are determined to make their own "breaks" and to get started off in the winning column once more.

A victory over W. and L., is is felt here, is just the tonic needed to rejuvenate the Mountaineers who have three-fifths of the season yet ahead of them. After an impressive start against some of the toughest early season competition ever arranged for a West Virginia squad, there is yet time to achieve sectional and national grid fame, with Wash-Lee, Oklahoma, A. & M., Fordham, Detroit, Georgetown and Wash Jeff in the offing.

Best Series Game Since 1915 In Prospect.

The battle at Laidley Field, Charleston, Saturday afternoon is certain to be more desperately fought, as far as the Mountaineers are concerned, than any previous game between the two. Not since 1915 has this annual clash assumed the importance in the eyes of the West Virginia players and followers that the impending game has reached.

A fighting clan of Mountaineers who will scrap from start to finish, will face the Generals at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon before a record breaking, capacity crowd which will pack and jam Laidley Field for the first time in the 32-year-old history of the Washington-West Virginia football rivalry.

St. John's Prepmen Defeat Landon, 26-6

Scoring in every quarter, the St. Joseph's Eleven piled up a 26-to-6 victory over Coach Gordon Kessler's new Landon Team yesterday. Although the losers were outweighed, they were not outfought and put up a stubborn battle throughout. Lack of reserve strength severely handicapped the Landon Team.

Morris, with two touchdowns, led the winners, while Batch and Rogerson scored one each. Defeated as they were, the losers nevertheless showed the makings of a well-coached combination.

Maryland Frosh Win From Little Generals

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 18.—Maryland's freshmen football team won a hard-fought game today from Washington and Lee Frosh, 12 to 7. Woods and Poppleman, former Quantico Marine stars, each made a touchdown in the early minutes of the first quarter.

As the game progressed, the Little Generals tightened up and scored ten first downs to Maryland's six. Revercomb, subquarter back, furnished the real thrill of the day when he received an alien punt and dashed 75 yards to a touchdown.

In the last quarter Washington and Lee's passing attack began to function properly and a pass, Lonergan to Brothers, put the ball on the three-yard line, but Maryland's line held and got the ball on downs.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 18.—Dundore's 60-yard run for a touchdown after receiving a punt featured Harrisonburg High School's 21 to 6 win over Buchanan High here today in a District IV League contest. Harrisonburg scored in the first quarter after a 30-yard run by Weaver and again in the fourth quarter on a series of plunges and a forward pass. Buchanan counted in the first period when Thomas, quarter back, plunged two yards to the goal line.

Great Grid Fight Likely As Georgia, N. C. U. Clash

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 18.—With Capt. Joe Boland's Georgia invaders already here, the Tarheels all set, the Carolina student body breathlessly excited, and the influx of spectators and supporters assuming large proportions, Chapel Hill was agog with excitement tonight at the prospect of tomorrow's great North Carolina-Georgia battle of the gridiron, on which the eyes of the football nation are focused.

The Georgia Team took a light workout today and visited Kenan Stadium, where tomorrow the strong conquerors of Yale are to make or mar their Southern championship aspirations.

Rival Squads Put Through Light Drills.

Head Coach Harry Mehre, of Georgia, and Head Coach Chuck Collins, of North Carolina, both former grid satellites at Notre Dame, contented themselves with putting their rival squads through light drills.

Coach Collins stated today that Bill Koenig and Henry House, veteran tackle and full back, and Pete Wyrick, veteran quarter back, probably would be barred by injuries, but otherwise the Tarheels will show full strength. Coach Mehre stated that his whole squad would be in shape.

North Carolina line and Georgia football teams have clashed eight times since 1895, with the Tarheels holding a 6-to-2 edge on victories. But that doesn't mean a thing when it comes to tomorrow's clash.

Great Struggle Promised By Both Teams.

North Carolina's defeat of Georgia Tech and Georgia's upset of Yale rank the two outfits among the strongest in the conference and every indication is for a record struggle that may go either way.

Virginia, Virginia Cadets Clash on Gridiron Today

V. M. I. Given Slight Edge in 25th Annual Meeting at Charlottesville; Both Teams Handicapped by Injuries.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 18. All is in readiness for the V. M. I.-Virginia game on Lambeth Field tomorrow afternoon. The kick-off is scheduled at 2:30 o'clock for the twenty-fifth gridiron meeting between the Cadets and Cavaliers since the series started in 1893.

Both elevens will throw all their available strength into action tomorrow, for the outcome of the game means much to the two rivals. V. M. I. and Virginia alike are in slightly bunged-up condition, but the best reserves have been thrown into the breach on both sides.

Advance dope gives the Cadets an edge, chiefly because there will be eleven monogram men in the starting lineup. Seven of the probable openers were in the lineup last fall when the Flying Squadron defeated Virginia, 9 to 0.

The Cavaliers, on the other hand, plan to start off with only four letter men and of these only Taylor at center, Turner on end and Faulconer in the back field led off against the Cadets a year ago.

Virginia will offer a slightly heavier team, but the Cadets will have the benefit of experience. Day, other starting "V" man, was in the line reserves last fall.

Capt. John Sloan, of the Cavaliers, will be forced to see the game from the bench, but his presence with the squad will serve as an inspiration. Moncure will run the team in his stead.

The presence of the Cadet corps on Lambeth Field, and music from the bands of both V. M. I. and Virginia will lend color to the contest. Two preliminary games will be played here tomorrow morning. Virginia Episcopal and Shenandoah Valley Academy meet on Lambeth Field, while the "Fives" will play the Woodberry Forest midgets on the Venable School field.

Tomorrow's probable line-ups:

Virginia.	Position.	V. M. I.
Turner	L. E.	Moody
Day	L. T.	Chadwick
DeButts	L. G.	Willard
Taylor	Center.	V. Grove
Lankford	R. G.	Haase

South Awaits Upsets Today In Three Big Grid Clashes

Alabama-Tennessee, Florida-Georgia Tech, Georgia-North Carolina Games Hold Chief Interest in Dixie.

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

STILL reeling from the blow the Georgia Bulldogs gave the dope last week, the football experts have thrown up their hands at the job of picking winners in today's leading Southern Conference struggles.

Agreeing that anything can happen at Knoxville, where Alabama and Tennessee lock horns; at Atlanta, where Florida meets Georgia Tech, and at Chapel Hill, the scene of the Georgia-North Carolina battle, most of the experts have written a huge question mark behind these games and let it go at that.

Both Tennessee and Alabama look good to win. Those old rivals have been using steam-roller tactics in the open this year and today's game likely will turn out to be the hardest fought on the Dixie program.

Alabama Has Edge On Tennessee.

Alabama, despite a hospital full of cripples, appears to have a slight edge if for no other reason than that Tennessee hasn't been drubbed at home in three years and would seem to be headed for a fall.

The form sheet gives the high-powered Florida eleven an advantage over Tech. Coach Bachman has the Alligators geared up to a high pitch and they will go after Tech today much as Georgia charged down on Yale last week.

But it has been a long time since an Alexander-coached machine lost to two Southern teams in succession and many gentlemen who would bet, if the law permitted, are willing to entertain any Tech and six-point offers they receive.

The Tornado is aroused after the North Carolina defeat and nothing less than 60 minutes of the hardest kind of football will stop it this afternoon. The Chapel Hill game is a toss-up. North Carolina has the more experienced team, and with Wyrick and House, first string backs, ready for business again, can present an even stronger front than routed Tech last week.

Vanderbilt Should Beat Auburn.

Many observers believe that the Yale game made the Georgia team, but that remains to be seen. Vanderbilt should win from Auburn, but the Commodores had better look sharp. There are rumors that the sleeping Glant at Auburn is getting ready to wake up.

Earl Abell's Virginia team is favored to slip over a win against Virginia Military, and if Louisiana State can stop Pappenheimer, the Mississippi A and M team should not prove bothersome.

Washington and Lee is in for a hectic afternoon with West Virginia and Virginia Poly will not get a chance to try out many subs against the always dangerous William and Mary Indians.

Southwestern Louisiana hasn't much to look forward to against Tulane except to see the great Banker in action. Sewanee is taking Cumberland seriously and Kentucky meets Carson-Newman with little in doubt except the size of the score. Maryland hopes to get revenge for two straight reverses by walloping Gallaudet.

The program in the S. I. A. A. favors Chattanooga over Birmingham Southern, Howard over Mercer, Furman over Newberry, Transylvania over Union, Rollins over Stetson and Louisiana College over Louisiana Normal.

V. M. I. Frosh Defeat Virginia Cubs, 6 to 0

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 18.—Scoring in the second quarter after a sustained drive of half the length of the field, the V. M. I. Freshmen halted three threatening marches of the Virginia Freshmen here today to win a hard-fought game, 6 to 0. Late in the first period, the young Cadets launched a line attack with Williams and Lavinder gaining on every try until Lavinder smashed through for the score. Payne, of Virginia, blocked the try for point.

Receiving the next kick-off, the Cavaliers, with Haggard slashing off-tackle for big gains, reached V. M. I.'s 10-yard line before the Cadets stopped the advance. In the third quarter, Virginia again made four first downs in a row, but the Cadets finally stopped Haggard, Brewer and Beury. The last threat came in the final period when a pass from Driscoll to Brewer netted 30 yards but the Cadets held like a wall on their own 8-yard line. The game ended with V. M. I. starting an attack at midfield. The Cadets registered 7 first downs to Virginia's 12.

BANK CELEBRATES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Commercial National Head Thanks Patrons for Support.

LOCAL MARKET BOOMS

BY THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Commercial National Bank occurs today, according to announcement of its president, R. Golden Donaldson, the bank opening its doors October 19, 1904, in the old banking rooms which then occupied its present site at the corner of Fourteenth and G streets northwest. In the course of a few years its growth demanded an expansion which resulted in the erection of the modern building it now owns and occupies.

The motto of the Commercial National has always been "The Bank of Personal Service," with needs of its customers its first consideration. New departments have been organized from time to time to meet their needs, until now, on its twenty-fifth birthday, it presents to its customers the services of a completely coordinated banking organization, equipped to transact every conceivable business service in this country and abroad.

Particular mention is hereby made of the departments of specialized nature:

The investment department, always at the service of its customers for investment. The real estate department, in connection with which the Commercial National Co., a separate corporation, was formed to handle every kind of investment business. The trust department, one of the most important in the structure of the modern bank, possessing a personnel trained to act in every fiduciary capacity, and the safe deposit department, offering every possible safeguard for the protection of its patrons.

Stands High In District.

That the Commercial National Bank has succeeded in its aims is evidenced by its present standing in the foremost rank of the banks of the District of Columbia. The continued growth of its assets to the present total of over $20,000,000 is futher conclusive proof of its success.

Mr. Donaldson, on behalf of the bank, said he wished to extend thanks to friends and customers who have made this success possible, and to extend a cordial invitation to the public to join the "Commercial family."

Volume of check payments indicated that business transactions during the week ended October 12 were smaller than in the preceding week, but greater than in the corresponding week of 1928, the weekly summary of the business situation by the Department of Commerce stated yesterday.

The general level of wholesale prices showed no change from the previous week, but was about 5 per cent lower than at this time a year ago. Business failures were less numerous than in the week prior, but showed a gain over last year.

Busy Day on Exchange.

Yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange was the busiest in many months, 21 stocks and bonds being represented in the trading. Sales volume in the former increased 244 shares over the previous day, a total of 535 shares being sold. Bond sale volume, $11,800, represented a $10,200 recession from Thursday.

The new Carpel Corporation stock sold again to the extent of 140 shares at 23¼, and 87 shares of Mergenthaler Linotype transferred at 104½, fractional decrease. American Security & Trust Co., gained 2 points on two opening sales of five shares each at 468; then receded a point on the next two of ten apiece, advancing to 467½ on a final exchange of five. Riggs National Bank also came out with a 2½-point rise, two shares selling at 610. It then dropped 4½ points on the next two sales of ten shares each and reacted in a closing transfer at 607.

Life Insurance Gains.

Life insurance sales in the District of Columbia totaled $4,057,000 in September, and 44 per cent of the companies doing business here reported business gains. The local increase for the month over September, 1928, was 12 per cent.

The monthly survey of life insurance sales prepared by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn., also announced that the unusual increase in sales of ordinary life insurance in the United States evidences a prosperity which is generaly shared throughout the country. In September the volume of insurance sold in the country as a whole was 16 per cent larger than in September, 1928. Every section of the country showed a gain during the month, and only six States failed to equal their production during September, 1928.

An offering has been announced of $32,000,000 Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. first mortgage sinking fund 5 per cent gold bonds, completing the total amount of $50,000,000 authorized to be issued under the first mortgage, dated January 2, 1911, and due January 1, 1941, at 100 per cent and accrued interest from July 1, 1929, subject to prior sale and the following conditions:

The right is reserved to reject any or all applications, and also, in any case, to allot a smaller amount than applied for. All applications will be received subject to the due authorization, issue and sale of the bonds as planned, and to approval by counsel of the form and validity of related documents and proceedings.

The amounts due on confirmed sales will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds to their order, and the date of payment will be stated in the confirmations of sale. Temporary bonds or interim receipts, exchangeable for definitive bonds when received, are to be delivered.

The offering is announced by J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., First National Bank, New York, Bankers Co., of New York, Harris, Forbes & Co., The National City Co., Guaranty Co., of New York and Lee, Higginson & Co.

Gas Company Grows.

Further development of the Southern Cities Utilities Co., is revealed in the announcement by Walter Wheatstone, president, that the company has purchased the gas systems serving Raleigh and Asheville, N. C., and is completing arrangements to acquire additional electric and gas properties in important foreign territory.

Among other gas properties it operates are the Lynchburg Gas Co., of Lynchburg, Va., and the Citizens Gas Co., of the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia Peninsula.

A total of 4,222,035 school children participated in school savings banking in the United States during the last school year, depositing $28,672,496 and rolling up net savings of $10,539,928, bringing total bank balances now credited to this movement.

ALL FOREIGNERS FLEE

Shanghai, Oct. 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Eight hundred troops under command of Gen. Fong Chen-Wu mutinied at 3 o'clock this morning at Wuhu, only about 30 miles from Nanking, seat of the central Nationalist government, headed by President Chiang Kai-Shek. By noon today they were actually in control of the city, in which there was widespread looting.

As a condition to their disbandment, ordered by the Nanking government, the mutinous troops demanded from the local chamber of commerce $60,000 Mexican. When this amount was paid, they demanded an additional $120,000. This was not forthcoming, and Nationalist troops were dispatched from Nanking to drive the mutinous troops from the city. Late dispatches received here indicate that the Nationalist forces were completely successful.

Late this evening there were unconfirmed reports that the fugitive mutineers have occupied Anking, capital of Anhuj Province, and that they have cut the Tientsin-Pukow railroad line.

All but three of the 100-odd foreigners in Wuhu, including six Americans, were evacuated when the city was attacked early today. All women and children were taken aboard the British gunboat Cricket. The Japanese warship Fushimi landed a force to protect Japanese residents and the Japaneee consulate.

Hsiangcheng, in Honan, was also looted today by bandits, according to reports reaching Shanghai.

Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, who was expected to leave today for Hankow, remains at Nanking tonight pending liquidation of the new disorders in Anhui. In spite of the increasing seriousness of the situation, all close to him insist that he is serenely confident of eventual success in putting down the government's enemies. It is freely admitted, however, that further mutinies would be extremely dangerous and that the government's margin of safety is steadily growing narrower.

Nanking's insistence that unification of the country has been actually achieved is likely to prove embarrassing, as already the British consul general at Nanking has called the foreign office there, inquiring what steps are being taken to protect the lives and property of British subjects in areas affected by the civil war.

Thus far Shanghai is wholly unaffected by the war situation, although there are rumblings of possible Communist activities here.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

KIWANIAN DISTRICT CHIEFS TO BE NAMED

AIMS STATED AT PARLEY

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18.—Maj. Charles S. Roller, headmaster of the Augusta Military School, Staunton, Va., and Jesse H. Binford, of Richmond, are leading candidates for the post of district governor of the Capital district, Kiwanis International, the eleventh convention of which formally opened here this morning. The annual election will be held at tomorrow morning's session. Caucuses were held tonight to nominate lieutenant governors for each of the divisions.

The convention today approved the recommendation of District Governor Harry G. Kimball to increase the district from five to six divisions. This will mean the election of an additional lieutenant governor.

The new district will include Baltimore, Havre de Grace and Towson in Maryland, and Wilmington, Rehoboth Beach and Seaford in Delaware, while the Winchester, Va., Club will be transferred from the fifth to the first division.

Addresses by Leaders.

The principal addresses today were made by Horace W. McDavid, of Decatur, Ill., president of the Kiwanis International, and Fred C. W. Parker, Chicago, secretary of the international.

Trophies for attendance were presented as follows: Richmond, gold; Petersburg, silver; Frederick, blue, and Hopewell, Va., white. Claude W. Owen, Washington trustee, substituting for Past Governor Merle G. Towner, read a paper on Kiwanis accomplishments in the Capital district.

The 39 clubs spent $40,000 for nutrition, children's hospital, school, orphans' home, Boy Scouts, clinic and essay contest during the year. The Washington club has given $25,000 since 1923 and 306 children benefited. The banquet and dance were held tonight in the State armory.

Promotion of service for underprivileged children heads the list of objectives of Kiwanis International for 1929-30, McDavid said in his address, which follows in part:

Objectives Are Stated.

"Kiwanis is now more than 14 years old. From one club of 30 members it has grown to an organization of 1,815 clubs, with over 102,000 members. It has been a remarkable growth, not only in number, but in the quality of achievement.

"In our plans we must not overlook either the character of the weekly programs or the general purposes and programs of our clubs throughout the year. We must not forget that clubs must have worthwhile programs of activity closely linked to the needs of the communities. Nothing will attract worthwhile men to our organization, grip them and keep them there—aside from the high character of the men in the group itself—more than useful programs of activity.

"Every Kiwanian should study the underlying purposes and principles of his organization. They cover a great field of laudable endeavor for our Kiwanis clubs. They were worked out purely that they might be helpful to the individual clubs. They are broad enough in their scope so that no club need go outside of them to find a splendid avenue of club activity and out of which a fine program of community activity can be constructed.

"The objectives for Kiwanis clubs for 1929-1930 are: To promote enduring service for under-privileged children, emphasizing personal contact with and assistance to an individual child by every Kiwanian.

"Must Solve Public Problems."

"To promote intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship through an understanding of the fundamentals of government and of our responsibilities as citizens to actively participate in the solution of public problems and in community service.

"To promote as fundamental principles in business and professional life the ideals expressed in the Kiwanis statement of business standards.

"To promote the spirit of understanding between the farmer and the city man, encouraging an appreciation of unity in aims and purposes.

Vocational Guidance Aim.

"To provide vocational guidance and placement for young men and women, through cooperation of every Kiwanian with those interested in his business or professional vocation.

"One of the greatest needs of our organization is a deeper appreciation of his responsibilities on the part of the indivdual Kiwanian. We ought, as service clubs, to looked ourselves squarely in the face. The greatest indictment against service clubs today is the failure on the part of the individual member in a greater or less degree to appreciate his own responsibility.

"While a club is the individual unit of every organization, and success of any international organization must necessarily depend on the local unit functioning, the club in turn depends for its well being on the individuals who compose it.

Responsibilities Held Vital.

Any organization which relieves a man of his personal responsibility, which relieves him from the necessity of thinking about the part that he must play, is a peril to society and a destroyer of social progress.

"We do not have to seek opportunities away from our home town. Right in our own backyards there are tasks awaiting us. We do need to have our eyes open to the things which are right close to us and to have receptive hearts and willing hands to do those tasks.

"The administrative policies for the year 1929-30 are: 1. The development of a comprehensive plan of leadership training. 2. A continued emphasis upon membership increase in our established clubs, having due regard for quality of members and representative membership. 3. The aggressive promotion of extension. 4. Further emphasis of the localization of Kiwanis objectives.

Pollard Answers Campaign Thrust

Tells Large Charlottesville Audience Next Election Can Not Be Stolen.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 18.—Addressing a representative audience at the armory tonight, including a large delegation from the university faculty, Dr. John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for governor, replying to recent statements by Dr. John Mosely Brown, coalition candidate, declared that it was impossible for the Democrats to steal the coming election without collusion or carelessness on the part of Republican representatives.

Formerly, he said, a Republican election official was selected by Democrats. Now Republicans must have representatives on electoral boards which select election judges.

The present law allows Republican watchers at the polls to see the opening of the election boxes, the counting of the ballots and the making of returns, he said.

RUM CHARGE JAILS FORMER DRY RAIDER

MORE TRUE BILLS FILED

Richard Anderson, once a member of the famous Alan Bowie flying squad, which spread terror throughout the underworld of Prince Georges County, yesterday was fined a total of $139 on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor, reckless driving and failure to observe a boulevard stop sign by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Upper Marlboro branch of Prince Georges County Police Court.

Failing to pay the fines, Anderson was committed to the county jail for 60 days. He was arrested a week ago by Deputy Sheriff L. E. Dutrow at Centerville. According to Dutrow, the former raider drove his car at a high rate of speed from the Red's Corner road onto the Marlboro pike without stopping for the boulevard stop sign, nearly forced an approaching car into a fence and then careened down the road. Anderson was represented by Attorney S. Marvin Peach.

Several years ago the flying squard was organized by former State's Attorney Alan Bowie to combat a wave of dry-law violations. Its spectacular methods kept the squad before the public eye for some months.

Howard Miskell, of Duley, Md., was fined $30 and costs on a charge of speeding and failure to observe a boulevard stop by Judge Sheriff. Miskell was arrested by Maryland State Policeman H. Freedy near Upper Marlboro.

The final list of indictments returned by the October grand jury, made public yesterday, is as follows:

William Parker, murder; Edgar Brooks, assault with intent to kill and assault and battery; John E. Cornell, false pretenses; William T. Littell, nonsupport; Robert J. Johnson, jail breaking; Eric B. Cissel, embezzlement; Arthur Reader, arson, housebreaking and larceny; Townsend B. Williford, Ralph Hoffman, larceny and receiving stolen goods; Thomas Lyles, Brooker T. Sullivan, Alfred I. Taylor, Champ Middleton, (two charges) statutory offenses; Edward Decker, James M. King, Jesse D. Smith, Robert McDonald, nonsupport; Harry Knight, cutting growing trees; Frederick Thorpe, drunk and disorderly; Francis Lewis, Naco Washington, Elgin Blair, Henry Munsen, two charges each of larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Jeremiah Hawkins, colored, yesterday was adjudged guilty of manslaughter by a jury in Prince Georges County Circuit Court last night after a deliberation of more than an hour. Hawkins was indicted by the grand jury fo. the murder of Frank Green, also colored, following a dispute with Green's son over $7. Sentence was deferred.

HOME IS DESTROYED IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

The home of Guy Pettit, located on the road between Burke Station and Fairfax, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The lack of telephone facilities in this community caused delay in notifying the Fairfax department. Even though the local department made a record run, the fire had made too great a headway for them to accomplish anything. The total loss was variously estimated to be about $2,500, which was covered by insurance.

Earlier in the week a small frame house between Falls Church and Annandale also was destroyed, handicapped as they were by the lack of water the firemen were able to save the barn and outbuildings.

These two fires within the last week, driving families from their homes, brings home to the people of this county the necessity of preparing for such cases of emergency by providing adequate water supply.

The Kenmore Council, No. 28, of the Daughters of America, will give an oyster supper in the auditorium of the Andrew Chapel School tonight at 6 o'clock. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the lodge.

A capacity crowd attended the public meeting in the Herndon Theater last night of the Fairfax County Hunt Club, called for the purpose of acquainting land owners with the plans of the organization. Dr. Ernest L. Roby, temporary chairman, presided at the meeting.

The club elected a board of governors and announced plans for its first hunt during the meeting. Members named on the governors' board included, L. C. Ferguson, Herndon; C. T. Brittle, Braddock Heights; O. K. Miller, Forrestville; K. E. Crandall, Herndon; Champ Hutchison, Pleasant Valley; J. W. Flack, Colvin Roads; C. J. Costello, Herndon; Montgomery Fox, Vienna; R. S. Critten, Herndon; Dr. Roby and F. S. McCandish, Fairfax.

It was announced the first hunt of the club will be held on November 9. Prior to the starting of the chase, a luncheon will be served at the home of A. Smith Bowman, president and sponsor of the club, at Sunset Hills.

The club now has more than 40,000 acres under lease for fox hunting purposes, it was stated, and the acreage is expected to be increased to about 60,000. Only three persons have denied the club the right to hunt on their lands.

During an altercation and alleged fisticuff between Martin Lowe, proprietor of a Herndon barber shop, and E. A. Stannard, proprietor of a Herndon restaurant, yesterday, both men suffered severe cuts from flying glass when two front windows and a glass door to the Herndon Hotel were broken.

The mix-up is said to have occurred on the porch of the hotel when Lowe charged that Stannard had been gossiping and telling tales on him. He is said to have accused Stannard of telling people that Lowe allowed gambling games to be played in the rear of his barber shop.

Lowe was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Vernon Cockrill and when taken before Mayor G. A. Darrow he was fined $10 and costs on a charge of assault and battery.

Three other persons were arrested by Cockrill and were taken before Mayor Darrow yesterday and fined. C. H. McFarland was fined $50 and costs for possession of liquor; Clyde Eads, $25 and costs for being drunk, and Charles Newman, $25 and costs for reckless driving.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was sewing. In one of those brief pauses for station announcements the radio master made an eloquent appeal for the observance of National Pharmacy week—now in our midst.

"At birth," said the announcer, "the pharmacist is with you. As you progress along life's highway he remains steadfast at his post, the corner drug store. Into the late hours of night he keeps vigil, while others sleep. When time, in its inexorable flight, touches your hair with the frost of many winters, he still remains true to the faith. Tonight, I beg of you, don't forget the old pharmacist with the lights of his store agleam in your neighborhood."

Immediately there was a flurry in our drawing room. A sewing basket was dumped peremptorily on the floor, the while Luella rushed to the closet for our wraps and things, flinging a hat and overcoat at me.

* * * * *

"WHAT'S all the fuss and pother?" I asked, somewhat bewildered.

"Didn't you hear that appeal to your patriotism?" she queried.

"What appeal? What patriotism?"

For a second, I thought probably some crime had been committed. She flayed me with a look.

"This," quoth Luella, "is National Pharmacy week."

I glared back at her. "What do I care? It might be National Travel week. We aren't going any place, are we?"

"Oh, yes, we are," she informed me, "we are going over to the apothecary shop——"

"The what shop?"

"To the apothecary shop—"

"All right, granted there is such a place, what are we going to do there?"

* * * * *

LUELLA stomped her foot. That, in the vernacular, is the payoff. Whenever Luella stomps her foot the army moves forward.

"At the apothecary shop," she announced, with all the command of a general in her voice, "we are going to pay our respects to the old apothecary man, the druggist, if you please."

"Yeah? And when, may I ask, is the last time you ever heard of an apothecary, or his shop—one, I mean, with the green and red balls in the window? It seems to me, all you can't get in a drug store nowadays is a load of hay—"

She was half way out the door.

"If you had a prescription," she flaunted, "you wouldn't be so slow getting started."

* * * * *

SOME truth in that, of course; but it all depends on the kind of prescription. At any rate, we went over to call on the druggist, a perfectly strange man, manager of a chain store, and there we helped him celebrate National Pharmacy Week, with bumpers all round. We just got in under the wire. Luella had her favorite, a chocolate soda, the druggist a malted milk, and I—well, since they wouldn't let me sing "Brown October Ale," I had a coke!

Before going home, Luella bought a doll-baby for one of the neighbor's children and I got a fire truck for the boy next door.

Apple Crop Peak Passed This Week

Annual Harvest in Winchester Orchards Area About to Close.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 18.—The annual apple harvest in commercial orchards of the Shenandoah-Cumberland district of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and southern Pennsylvana is about to close. The peak was passed this week in the Winchester area, where a crop of approximately 650,000 barrels was picked and packed, mostly in barrels, and next week is expected to see growers winding up the marketing of apples that fell on the ground. Prices have been well maintained, and the tendency continues upward for good fruit.

York Imperials, the chief output of the Winchester district, are selling better than $4.50 per barrel in some markets. Most of the cold storage plants in Winchester and other cities and towns are well filled with apples. Up to this time only about 700,000 barrels have been sent from the United States to British markets against 1,275,000 barrels for the same period last year. Cold storage plants operating in Winchester have capacity for approximately 1,000,000 barrels, and they are receiving fruit from many sections of the Shenandoah-Cumberland district as well as from the Pacific Northwest.

Apples from the latter section are received and held under the storage-in-trust rule of the Interstate Commission Commission. Most of the fruit now in storage is of good quality, while a year ago much of a rather inferior character was placed in storage.

University Dance Pledges Are Made

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 18.—The fall dances at the University of Virginia, which opened tonight, are all pledged. No student will be allowed on the dance floor who has had a drink after noon of the day of the dance. Any member of the student body not complying with this rule will be expelled from the university. A warning to this effect was given undergraduates by the honor committee.

The first dance, sponsored this year by the German Club, was held last night in Memorial Gymnasium, with the largest attendance in years. For the first time, first-year men have been invited to all dances, it having been the custom in the past to exclude them from the Friday night affair. Dancing began at 9 o'clock and lasted until 3 o'clock.

The P. K. Society was host to tonight's dance. The dance tomorrow night will end at 12 o'clock, according to custom.

BRIDGE ROAD SITE SELECTION DENIED

Arlington Paper Carries Statement Made by Col. Shirley.

GREEN MAKES SPEECH

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Denial by Chairman Col. H. G. Shirley, of the Virginia State Highway Commission, that the State has selected the route for the straight-to-the-bridge boulevard is published in an interview with that official in this week's issue of the Arlington Times, circulated this morning. Shirley is reported as saying that the route for that highway has not been selected and any work which the county or State is now doing on the memorial drive and Garrison road is no indication of what the final selection of the route will be.

Arthur Orr, president of the Straight-to-the-Bridge Association, declared that nothing could be more improbable that the State would begin, at this time, the construction of the straight-to-the-bridge road. A recent letter from Col. Shirely, released by Orr at the meeting of the John Marshall Highway Association a few weeks ago, declared absolutely that the State had not selected a route for the straight-to-the-bridge road, and will not do so until after funds have been allocated for its construction. No allocations will be made in the ordinary course, Orr stated, until the annual meeting of the highway commission in December.

Robert I. Mount, resident State highway engineer, last night declared that no plans are under way for any permanent hard surface for either Memorial drive or Garrison road, those sections which have been taken over by the State.

"What the State is preparing to do," said Mount, is to put a quarter of an inch of chips and tar on both roads. If that is a hard surface, I do not know what a hard surface road is."

W. H. Thomas, principal of the George Mason High School, was appointed county superintendent of schools for Fauquier County by the county school board, meeting at Warrenton yesterday. Thomas will assume his new duties November 1, with headquarters at Warrenton.

Thomas for the past five years has been in school work in Arlington County and for three years has been the principal at George Mason.

The George Mason High School being within that section that becomes a part of the City of Alexandria on January 1, the vacancy will not be filled by Prof. Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, until he has consulted with the superintendent of the Alexandria schools, it was learned last night.

Speaking at Aurora Heights last night, Harry K. Green, county commissioner of revenue, held Virginia up as being the greatest comeback State of the Union. He said that at the close of the Civil War Virginia was bankrupt, her fields laid waste, her mills burned, her money system lost and her territory divided. Green stated that today Virginia enjoys the happy situation of being perhaps the only State in the Union that is entirely out of debt. The liquid assets of the Old Dominion can wipe out the bonded indebtedness overnight and instead of a deficit in the State treasury leave a handsome surplus, he declared. The speaker said in part:

"During the past four years, under the leadership of Gov. Harry F. Byrd, the Commonwealth of Virginia has become one of the most progressive States in the Union. The reorganization of Virginia's government has excited the admiration of students of government of all sections of the United States. Commissions from other States have sent delegates to Virginia to study our new system of government, and leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties are now looking upon Virginia as being one of the most advanced States in governmental affairs in our Nation. The Republican Governor of Delaware came to Virginia to study our reorganization and the Governors of Ohio and Vermont have urged that our system be presented to the people of their States. Arkansas sent members of her general assembly to Virginia last year, headed by the governor, to study our progressive measures, some of which have already been enacted into laws by the assembly of Arkansas. Under the reorganization plan of Virginia the general assembly has been able to reduce all classes of taxation except automobile licenses and the gasoline tax, every dollar of which is being used for State roads and Virginia is now enjoying about 3,500 miles of hard-surfaced roads with as much additional mileage already adopted by the State Highway Department, which is being built rapidly. Not a dollar of bonded indebtedness does Virginia owe for her roads, but under the pay-as-you-go plan fine roads are being built without burdening future generations to pay interest and principal on bonded indebtedness.

"Under Gov. Byrd's administration every property owner of Virginia has been relieved of State tax on his home or real estate. The home owners of Virginia do not pay a single cent of taxes for State purposes and the relief of this tax alone has saved the taxpayers of Arlington County annually between $60,000 and $70,000 and $1,500,000 over the entire State.

"The reduction in capital tax from $1.10 to 75 cents has made Virginia one of the most inviting States in the Union for industries. During the last four years industries have located in Virginia bringing a capital of $300,000,000, employing 34,500 people, with an annual pay roll of $166,000,000. The capital investment of industries in Virginia, under the Byrd administration, equals the total assessed valuaton of 60 counties in the State.

"Under the governor's reorganization plan, hundreds of useless offices have been abolished, many consolidated, and our system of government is now recognized as being one of the wonders of American statehood."

Green appealed to his hearers to support Dr. John Garland Pollard and his associates for State offices this fall, stating that these officials are all trained men in government affairs and are pledged to keep alive the progressive policies of Gov. Byrd. He stated that at this stage of Virginia's advancement it would be folly to experiment with men "who have no training in governmental affairs," and inasmuch as both branches of the General Assembly undoubtedly would be overwhelmingly Democratic, the election of a coalition candidate or a Republican to State office could accomplish nothing but to tie up the wheels of progress and stagnate the advancement of Virginia for the next four years, he asserted.

Green in his final appeal said that as he saw it "this campaign is not a question of Democrats, independents or Republicans, but a question of who can serve the best interests of Virginia, and certainly from our experience of the last four years the people of Virginia have a right to believe that a continuation of the Byrd policies will place Virginia in the forefront of all the States in the Union."

Beginning Monday, October 21, the Arlington County water department will start to remove meters from all premises that are delinquent in payment of water bills which were rendered as of October 1, in accordance with the directions of the county board of supervisors.

Over the protest of residents of Virginia Highlands, Aurora Hills and Arlington Ridge, the Arlington County Zoning Commission, in session at the courthouse last night, approved the application of the National Oil Co., of Richmond, Va., for a permit to erect storage tanks for gasoline and oil on the N. Auth property, located on Columbia pike.

J. H. Bittenbender, representing the Aurora Hills Civic Association, who went on record opposing the granting of the permit, when questioned by Charles T. Jesse, chief of counsel for the oil company, admitted that the section which he represented was 1 mile from the location of the proposed plant.

Mrs. Alice Semones, property owner in the Aurora Hills section, declared that because there were already oil companies in the section in question was no good reason why more should be allowed to come in.

"We have been called the dumping ground for every thing, why continue to let it be said? Help us clean up the entrance into Washington rather than to continue to permit unsightly conditions as this plant will be," Mrs. Semones said.

Others opposing the granting of the permit were Dr. J. N. Roberts, Col. Joseph H. Ford and Gilson Gardner.

Robert H. Forman, member of the commission, declared that the section in question was purely commercial and that the county can not afford to allow it to stand idle until it is, if ever, converted into a park. Commissioner Forman made the motion to grant the permit, which was seconded by Maj. W. R. Richards and was immediately unanimously approved by the other members of the commission.

G. R. Collier was chosen chairman of the annual roll call at a meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, held last night at the courthouse.

The roll call will start November 11. There will be a special meeting of the committee at the home of Collier on Columbia pike, Thursday night, October 24, at which time plans for the drive will be formulated.

Members of Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., and the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge, No. 28, will attend services in a body tomorrow morning at the Community Methodist Episcopal Church in Aurora Heights.

Carrie C. Jenkins, charged with destroying private property, was fined $19.25, including costs, by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday.

State Dry Agents To Watch Students

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 18.—State prohibition inspectors will be on hand to observe conditions at the Virginia-V. M. I. football game tomorrow afternoon, a proclamation made public by President Alderman today states.

This action on the part of the prohibition department of Virginia is thought to be the outgrowth of widespread and sensational charges of wholesale drinking at the Virginia-Carolina game last Thanksgiving Day.

"The eyes of the State are upon you, and the welfare of the university is, to a certain extent, in your hands," the proclamation states. "They know what our laws and regulations are. The real question is that the occasion be free from drinking. I am, therefore, requesting the students to take interest in seeing that this occasion, as far as they can do so, is free from any use of spirituous liquors."

In conclusion President Alderman expressed confidence that his appeal will be heeded by the students. The inspectors will come armed with authority to make arrests.

TOBACCO GROWERS DEPLORE CONDITIONS

INVESTIGATION IS ASKED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 18.—Little or no change is seen in the tobacco marketing situation in the Old Belt, with the daily averages vacillating between $17.60 per hundred pounds and $17.25. Some of the more desirable grades are selling at a good price but a large quantity of inferior tobacco is selling at from 3 to 5 cents a pound, curtailing the market's average. The farmers are not selling as heavily as is their wont at this season of the year and Danville has yet to have sales running throughout the entire day.

Farmers are holding meetings in various parts of the belt deploring conditions. At one of these, held at Danbury, N. C., and attended by about 300 growers, a series of resolutions were adopted. It was set forth that the cost of raising tobacco this year is 20 cents a pound and that the price is below 15 cents. Attention is called to the increased wholesale rate of cigarettes, which it is asserted means $40,000,000 to the companies joining in the price increase. The resolutions further contend that the rights of the farmers are "being trampled on for selfish gain."

"The tobacco growers of this State," the resolutions continue, "are facing ruin because of the selfish and heartless action of the large tobacco companies which have turned a deaf ear to the farmers' plea. The farmers believe that both territorial and price agreements have been entered into by these tobacco companies to the detriment of the farmers and in violation of the Sherman antitrust law."

The resolutions then appeal to representatives and senators representing the Old Belt district to set on foot a congressional investigation into the activities of all the large companies and to secure from President Hoover a hearing to the growers

Facilities Lacking In U. of V. Hospital

Superintendent's Report Urges 1,000 Beds to Meet Needs.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 18.—The University of Virginia Hospital admitted and treated 655 patients during September and held a daily average of 246 patients for the month, a report made by Dr. John A. Hornsby, superintendent, today shows. Figures indicate the institution has been running 80 per cent full for the last several months, which is considered hospital capacity. Dr. Hornsby declared "eight out of every ten people who would like to come here have to be rejected," and that "the hospital should be equipped with 1,000 beds, if the best interests of the State could be consulted."

The superintendent explained that vital statistics show 3 people out of every 100 are idle from illness each day. This number, he said, could be materially reduced by preventive medicine and proper hospitalization. Dr. Hornsby said "a hospital with 1,000 beds and a corresponding medical staff and hospital personnel would be the best investment the State could make." He strongly urged such an institution and declared it would repay the State in dollars and cents.
